RAF RIPS INVASION PORTS

Drop 100 Bombs a Minute

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 28—The British Royal Air Force tonight launched one of the greatest attacks ever made on the German-held invasion bases along the French side of the English Channel. Watchers on the Enlish side of the channel estimated the British planes were dropping bombs at the rate of 100 per minute along the French coast. This has been going on since Thursday—day and night—almost continuously as part of a major aerial offensive to smash preparations of the German army for an invasion atempt.

The attack tonight ranged all the way from Calais to Boulogne. A fierce fire broke near the German big gun emplacement at Cap Gris Nez. The glare was seen by thousands of watchers in towns along the English side of the Straits Dover.

As the British raid developed, it became apparent that it was the greatest aerial attack on the French coast since the R. A. F. smashed up the German invasion army last September.

The magnitude of the British attack led neutral quarters in London to believe the British must have received information that Germany either was planning an invasion attempt tonight, or was massing large forces for an early attempt

HITLER BANS AID TO DUCE

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 28 (AP)—With the advance guard of a new Nazi expedition of 300,000 troops already rolling eastward across Hungary, authoritative sources reported today that Germany plans to move against Greece by way of Bulgaria only if Britain tries to use Greece as the starting point of an invasion of Central Europe.

Germany, these sources said, will not make any move to aid the Italian forces now fighting the Greeks in Albania if the British refrain from landing troops in Greece.

Germany was understood by these sources to have let it be known in the Balkans that in the event of Italian collapse as the result of a Greek victory, the Nazis would hasten to make a definite peace with France.

It was stated authoritatively that Adolf Hitler had agreed to let Premier Mussolini attack Greece last October only because he wished to divert Italy's attention from beaten France.

Germany was said to have been considerably embarrassed by Italian clamor for slices of French territory when Hitler reportedly wished to give Marshal Philippe Petain, French chief of state, easy terms so as to win the Vichy government's full friendship.

PEACE WITH FRANCE

The debacle in Albania, far from disquieting Germany, has made Italy keep quiet about demands in France, these sources said.

They asserted that Hitler was prepared to make a full peace settlement with France, with only the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine changing hands, if Italy collapses.

Petain was understood to have told the Nazis that in case the German terms were "unreasonable" he would cut North Africa loose, with General Maxime Weygand taking a large colonial army into the ranks of General Charles De Gaulle's "Free French" forces, moving against Italian Libya from Tunisia in co-ordination with the current British action from Egypt.

INSURANCE MEASURE

Mass movements of German troops and war materials to Rumania, which, it is estimated by observers, will give the Nazis nearly half a million men there by the end of January, were designed

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (AP)—Do not send food packages to England. You will annoy the ministry of shipping and probably embarrass the recipient.

He may be questioned on the theory he is trying to circumvent the rationing laws and the chances are he'll have to pay more to get your package out of customs and inspection than he'd have to pay for twice its equivalent in English foods.

Restaurant menus are not what they used to be, but here is one which will serve to illustrate the present situation. It comes from a place catering to the newspaper men of the Fleet st. area. Prices have been converted to the United States equivalent.

In prewar days there were half a dozen soups on this menu, several of them ready to serve. Today, only the pea soup is freshly made. The consomme is canned and you wait 10 minutes for its heating. Uncertainty of gas pressure and a limited number of emergency oil burners lead to making as few commitments as possible in this section.

JUST ONE DISH

Before war's crimp in offerings, at least 10 or 12 fish courses were available, including Dover sole, Scotch salmon and the inevitable broiled herring.

F. D. Calls In Cabinet to Help Draft Sunday's Fireside Talk

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP)—As President Roosevelt worked today on the radio address he will make tomorrow night, a White House secretary said a great number of suggestions on what he should say about national defense and aid to Britain were coming from all parts of the country.

Stephen T. Early, presidential press secretary, classified some of them as evidently inspired by organization work and others as being spontaneous pleas from individuals.

The President considered the speed so important that he called in members of his cabinet to confer on the rough draft.

WHEELER FIHTS PLAN

Asked about a statement by Sen. Wheeler (D.), of Montana, that the White House was giving publicity before the speech only to warlike appeals, Early said "we are not getting anything from anyone, except from an individual or two, who does not want to give aid to Britain."

Wheeler will speak over the radio Monday night in opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's "land-lease" plan of furnishing war supplies to Great Britain.

The President, desiring the fullest opportunity to work on his speech, made only two engagements for today.

William Phillips, ambassador to Italy, called to say good by before starting back to his Rome post, and William S. Knudsen, defense administration chief, conferred with him on new ship construction.

SOME PROPAGANDA

Discussing messages to the President, Early said:

"There have been quite a lot of suggestions for the President's speech coming in from the most unexpected parts of the country and from people really deeply interested in the situation.

"They want the President to

KATHLEEN MORAN IS VOTED BEST DRESSED HUB WOMAN

Lovely Kathleen Moran, wealthy and socially prominent Back Bay girl who recently forgot stage aspirations for a soon-to-be-celebrated wedding, today wore the crown of "Best Dressed Woman in Boston."

The Back Bay girl who lives intermittently on Berkeley st. and in New York's Park ave. headed the list of 40 Greater Boston women after a heated discussion by a dozen of the city's leading stylists.

The stylists had only one complaint—Boston women won't spend any part of the $100,000 a year that New York's "best dressed" Mrs. Harrison Williams lays out yearly for her clothes.

Nevertheless, all agreed that Boston women are every bit as well dressed.

CLOSE RUNNER-UP

Boston's second best dressed title went to Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., of Chestnut st., a close runner-up.

Third in the list was Mrs. John W. Adie of Beacon st., while Mrs. Alan Forbes of Beacon st. was fourth.

The remaining members of the "ten best dressed" were Mrs. Charles Kuhn of Brattle st., Cambridge; Mrs. Robert Herrick of Commonwealth ave., Mrs. John J. Moran, mother of Kathleen; Mrs. David Braude of Park st., Brookline; Mrs. Richard Engstrom of Eliot st., Lexington, and Mrs. Daniel Jones, Jr., of Arlington st.

Other women included among Boston's "best dressed" were:

Mrs. Henry Faxon, Brookline; Mrs. William Endicott, Jr., Back Bay; Mrs. Ralph Snider, Brookline; Mrs. James C. Duane, Brookline; Mrs. William Bayne, 3d, Westwood; Mrs. John Shepard, 3d, Brookline; Mrs. W. E. McGregor, Brookline; Mrs. Edgar Pierce, Cambridge; Mrs. Gifford K. Nurse Bride Ends Own Life In Gloucester

GLOUCESTER, Dec. 28—Bride of three months, Mrs. J. Donald Boudreau, 24, acting head floor nurse at the Addison Gilbert Hospital, was found dead from illuminating gas today at her home in East Main st.

Medical Examiner Ira B. Hull said that the nurse, known professionally as Marguerite E. Chambers, was a suicide.

FOUND BY HUSBAND

Boudreau, who runs the Bass Rocks Protective Patrol, with most of the wealthy summer people with cottages at Eastern Point as his clients, said he had supper as usual with his bride last night before starting on his rounds.

He dropped in at the police station at 2:45 a. m., as is his custom, then went home to put coat in the furnace.

He said he detected gas on arriving home and when he found the kitchen door locked he broke it open, to find his bride dead, fully clothed, with her head resting on a pillow on the floor.

He carried her upstairs but after vainly attempting to revive her, summoned the fire department.

Boudreau said he left the house at 7:50 last night, as soon as he had finished supper. Police and Medical Examiner Hull said she probably prepared immediately for death, as the supper dishes and remains of food were still on the table. All gas jets of the stove were turned on.

GRADUATE OF HOSPITAL

Dr. Hull said the young bride had feared she was contracting a respiratory malady. There had been X-ray pictures of her, however, and these plates revealed her fears were groundless.

The nurse, a native of Westerly, R. I., entered the hospital 6 years ago as a student and was graduated after the 3-year course.

Since graduation she has been alternating in hospital duty and in private nursing.

Blue-eyed and with light brown hair, associates at the hospital said she was an attractive girl who appeared to have no serious worries.

3 Hub Lawyers Face Bar Ouster

Moves to disbar three prominent lawyers who have figured in Boston politics for years, have been made by the Boston Bar Association, it was learned today.

The Supreme Court has been requested to appoint a special commissioner to hear evidence against the trio on charges that they defrauded the Federal government of income taxes for more than three years.

The grievance committee of the Boston Bar Association has already held several hearings in connection with these cases.

All papers on file in the Supreme Court, it is understood, have been impounded.

One of the lawyers involved is said to be a former powerful political leader who served in the legislature for many years.

Charlestown Man Held in Hotel Robbery

Positively identified, police said, as one of a bandit gang who staged a $6000 robbery at the Hotel Somerset Dec. 7, a 27-year-old Charlestown man was arrested today and held in $10,000 double surety in Roxbury court.

Charles J. Schena, Jr., of Henley st., Charlestown, was picked out of a police headquarters lineup by Sherman Bird, night manager of the hotel. He said:

"That's the fellow who pointed a revolver at me and then slugged me twice on the head and knocked me down. He's the same man who later forced me to open the safe."

Loot taken in the holdup included $1981 in cash and more than $4000 worth of jewelry.

Already arrested and held as accessories after the robbery are an Everett barber, Dominick Gentile, 56, and a Roxbury woman, Mrs. Gertrude E. Strekuskas.

Warrants charging armed robbery have been issued for two alleged principals in the holdup, William and Matthew McGrath of the South End.

William, a former Hotel Somerset bellboy, was seized by police at Miami, Fla., and is held there pending extradition.

SOLONS SAY PANAMA CANAL DEFENSELESS

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1940

Planes, Anti-Aircraft Guns Seen Obsolete

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 27—The Panama Canal, jugular vein of U. S. national defense, is woefully unprotected against attack from the air, members of a congressional inspection party charged today.

Obsolete war planes and small-caliber anti-aircraft guns of World War vintage guard the vital link between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, according to Rep. Forest A. Harness of the House military affairs committee.

"As soon as the new Congress convenes in January, I shall demand that the Military Affairs Committee call witnesses to explain why the Canal is in such a vulnerable condition," said Harness, a veteran of the A. E. F. and former commander of the Indiana Department, American Legion.

GUNS NOT THERE

He continued:

"The 90-millimeter gun which can hit an invading bomber at 30,000 feet is the best anti-aircraft weapon known. But there isn't a single one of these defending the Panama Canal.

"Next best anti-aircraft gun, in the opinion of experts, is the 37-millimeter, hurling high explosive shells.

"But we haven't a single one of these, either, at the Panama Canal.

"This is something the American people ought to know, and I propose to demand a full airing of the facts and the explanation, if any.

"I will insist that Congress be told why the focal point of Western Hemisphere defense is without these weapons—or weapons of similar capacity—which have saved the British from worse bombing at the hands of the Nazi air corps.

"I don't know whether we are shipping 90-millimeter and 37-millimeter anti-aircraft guns abroad but I do know we have none guarding the Panama Canal.

BLAME COMMISSION

"I blame the National Defense Commission. Why haven't these weapons gone on the priority list for the Panama Canal? Why haven't we got going with production?

"It takes six months to build a 90 milimeter anti-aircraft gun and the cost is $40,000 each. But we've been getting our national defense prepared for more than six months now.

"Aside from our fleet and aside from our coast artillery, which is good down here, defense equipment my colleagues and I saw on our inspection trip doesn't indicate we are adequately protecting this nation's jugular vein."

Supporting Rep. Harness' charges, Rep. Joseph W. Byrns, Jr., of Tennessee, said:

"I didn't see a single modern war plane at the Panama Canal all the time I was down there. There are none of the Flying Fortresses. The best bomber they have is of a type so obsolete the British won't accept it.

DEFENSE FIND NEED

"The House Military Affairs committee unquestionably ought to go ahead with the investigation demanded by Rep. Harness.

"I understand we've about 23,000 soldiers and 125 to 150 planes guarding the Canal now.

"I feel much more of our defense funds should be spent on the Panama Canal and I feel further that some of the money already spent has been spent in the wrong direction.

"I can't understand the lack of up-to-date planes down at Panama no.' the lag in other defense equipment.

"I believe my colleague, Rep. Fred Bradley of Michigan, a flier himself, knew what he was talking about when he charged there wasn't a plane at the Canal capable of doing more than 140 miles an hour.

"This is a shocking situation when you remember the Nazis and British are using 400-mile-an-hour ships."

EQUIPMENT IN OPEN

Rep. Cliff Clevencher of Ohio criticised lack of concealment and lack of protection for Canal Zone repair shops, gun emplacements, flying fields and other defense equipment.

"We've got a lot of beautiful targets down there," he said. "Haven't we enough steel and concrete in this country to cover such facilities as repair and machine shops? Why haven't they been bomb-proofed?

"If a repair shop on the Panama Canal is bombed out of commission, you can't fly a new one in over night. You could fly in new planes, but not a machine shop. The whole set-up down there is laid out like a peacetime industrial plant.

"I'm afraid some of our military men don't believe there is a new warfare. I'll bet I asked 50 times why everything is so open to aerial attack and the best answer I could get was that there seems to be a division of thought about the value of concealment.

"From what we know of the European war, I don't see much room for a division of thought on this particular score."

PERFECT TARGETS

Rep. George W. Gillie of Indiana said:

"I don't set myself up as a military expert (he's a captain in the U. S. Army Reserve) but I'm not satisfied the Panama Canal is guarded as it should be.

"For one thing, gasoline and fuel tanks stand above ground—perfect targets! This seems hardly wise in view of modern war developments."

All 12 of the returning Congressmen were warm, however, in their praise of army officers and men stationed in the Panama Canal Zone.

"They are doing a magnificent job with the means available," Rep. Harness said.

"The trouble is that we have been too slow to realize that these means are entirely inadequate. We have been inexcusably slow in waking up to the job that must be done."

2000 SIGN ANTI-WAR TELEGRAM

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 28 (INS) — A telegram containing more than 1700 signatures was to be sent to President Roosevelt today by the "No Foreign War" committee, urging the President not to "give away" the country's national defense, and to keep the United States out of the European war.

The telegram is intended as an answer to the recent message Mr. Roosevelt received over the signatures of 171 prominent Americans, asking him "to make it the settled policy of this country to do everything that may be necessary to insure the defeat of the Axis powers."

It is sponsored by Verne Marshall, Iowa publisher and chairman of the "no foreign war" committee.

APPEALS TO PEOPLE

Signatures on today's appeal to the Chief Executive were authorize for use by the "No Foreign War" committee in response to two radio broadcasts by Marshall yesterday in which he appealed for support of:

"The common people of the great Middle West—the common people who provide the cannon fodder and the food with which to feed an army."

The committee announced that 1734 persons from six other states have authorized their signatures for telegram to President Roosevelt.

Marshall is his broadcasts informed his listeners that he desired to have his telegram at the White House before the President delivers his "fireside chat"—Sunday night. He said:

"I will ask the President—'Please as our elected servant, keep us out of this war. Do not give away our national defense if we are so endangered as you repeatedly tell us we are.

STOP THE WAR!

"'Above all, do not give away to any country three billion dollars worth of our defensive needs if our peril is one-third as grave as you and Bill Knudsen say it is.'"

Marshall said his committee "certainly is not working for a Nazi victory," but declared that America has the power to stop the war.

adopt their ideas. It is unusual in that I haven't seen it happen before."

Asked whether any of it was "organized propaganda," he replied:

"Some of it does and some does not look like organizational propaganda. A good bit of organization work naturally is in it. There also is a lot of suggestions coming in spontaneously from individuals."

The President's address will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow night. Early has predicted that it would be very clear and specific on aid to Britain.

Wheeler Fears New AEF in "Gun-Lease"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (INS)—President Roosevelt's program of leasing implements of war to Great Britain may lead to the use of American soldiers abroad, Sen. Wheeler (D.) of Montana, head of the congressional non-intervention bloc, declared today.

The senator will make a radio address Monday night to answer President Roosevelt's speech of Sunday.

Wheeler predicted the possibility of another American expeditionary force if the legality of the lease and loan program continues unchallenged by Congress, and is carried forward "without restraint."

"If under the laws of this country, the President feels he has the right to lease battleships, airplanes, and munitions, he can loan the boys who are in the army, or who are being drafted," Wheeler said. "One is just as legal as the other.

"It is my prediction that unless this circumvention, and evasion of our neutrality act is brought to a halt we will find that American soldiers are being sent to the aid of Great Britain."

Boston Stations To Broadcast F. D. Address

Nearly all radio stations in Boston will broadcast President Roosevelt's address tomorrow night at 9:30.

2 Cops Get 3 Mos. In Theft of Whiskey

Recently found guilty of stealing liquor from a West Roxbury package store, two policemen, formerly attached to the West Roxbury station, were sentenced today to serve three months each at the Deer Island House of Correction.

They stood committed after Judge John E. Swift refused a stay of sentence pending a supreme court appeal on points of law.

The defendants, suspended Patrolmen Joseph R. Carey and John S. Stabins, admitted taking 12 bottles of whiskey but testified they found it outside the rear of the store.

Total amount of liquor missing, including the 12 quarts of Scotch, was valued at $180, according to the prosecution.

Imposing sentence, Judge Swift said the penalty was unusually severe for first offenders but he felt it necessary to make examples of men false to positions of public trust.

"Something must be done," he said, "to indicate that officers whom the public entrusts safety and property cannot expect the same treatment by the court as persons owing less duty to the community."

Carey, thre years a member of the Boston police department, lives in King st., Dorchester, and is the father of one child. Stabins, a wounded World War veteran, has been 22 years in the department. He is the father of four children. The whiskey theft was from a Center st., West Roxbury, liquor store.

Judge Chandler Of Lawrence Dies

ANDOVER, Dec. 28 (AP)—Judge Frederic N. Chandler, 70, of the Lawrence District Court, died at his home today after a brief illness.

A native of Lawrence, he was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1893 and from Boston University law school in 1897. A former city solicitor of Lawrence, he was appointed a special justice in 1907 and has been full justice since 1927.

The widow survives.

City Hospital Overcrowding May Be Eased

Facilities of the Detention Hospital were offered today to the Boston City Hospital by Health Commr. Dr. George Lynde Gately to relieve overcrowding resulting from increases in grippe and pneumonia cases.

In asking known his offer to Dr. James W. Manary, superintendent of the City Hospital, Dr. Gately pointed out the Detention Hospital is maintained all year round for just such an emergency and can be occupied on a moment's notice.

The hospital buildings in Southampton st. have recently been cleaned and painted and heat can be provided without any delay, Dr. Gately said, in pointing out all 50 beds are now available.

Dr. Manary today issued a warning to prospective patients at the City Hospital that bed capacity of 2500 has almost been reached and only those requiring immediate treatment would be admitted.

Commenting on the recent increases in grippe and pneumonia, Dr. Gately warned people against becoming panicky. He said the grippe was not serious and resulted from a combination of over-tiring during the holiday season and irregular eating and sleeping.

As for the pneumonia outbreak, Dr. Gately pointed out that almost every case reported was of the non-infectious bronchial type, not the more feared lobar pneumonia, which is contagious.

Panama Craft Escapes Torpedo In Neutral Azores

PUNTA DELGADA, the Azores, Dec. 28 (AP)—A submarine of unidentified nationality fired a torpedo ineffectively today at a ship which had just left the harbor of this city in the Portuguese Azores.

The ship, flying the flag of Panama, immediately put about and re-entered the harbor without mishap.

Woman Dope Suspect Caught

Sought throughout the United States, France and Italy since 1934, a former Winthrop woman, under federal indictment as an alleged member of a Boston-New York dope ring, was arrested in East Boston today.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Nalli, 35, alias Mary Conti and Mary Averse, was seized by four deputy U. S. marshals on a warrant charging her with being a fugitive from justice.

Arrested in the winter of 1933-1934 with several alleged men members of the dope ring, Mrs. Nalli jumped her bail of $10,000.

Mother Feeds Liquor to Stop Baby's Crying

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (INS)—An unmarried mother was being held today while police investigated charges that she had fed her baby whiskey daily for four years since birth "because her crying annoyed me."

Police said the mother, Helen Kreidieh, 27, admitted she had given her daughter two glasses of whisky daily "since she was born." They quoted the mother as saying:

"As soon as Josephine drinks her whisky she drops off to sleep. I started giving her whisky because her crying annoyed me. I am of the nervous type.

"Now, I think Josephine cries on purpose, knowing I will give her a shot. Anyway, when she does not get her shot, she cries loudly."

Police said the little girl was given a "shot" before she went to bed at night, and another sometime during the day.

The child was described as pretty, but undernourished, with thin arms and legs.

DOUBLE MURDER HITS PA. FARM SECOND TIME

CLARION, Pa., Dec. 28 (INS)—A rural gas well worker and his son were slain, a mother injured and a daughter twice attacked, it was revealed today as tragedy struck on the Wentling farm for the second time in a quarter-century.

The dead were Reuben Levi Wentling, 58, and his 12-year-old son, Reuben Levi, Jr.

Mrs. Olive Wentling, 51, the wife and mother, and Elizabeth, 23, the daughter, were reported in serious condition at Oil City Hospital, where the father died early today.

SECOND TRAGEDY ON FARM

Police were searching for Frank Dearolf, 35, a son of Wentling's sister, who recently appeared after years of absence.

Twenty-five years ago, on the same farm, Dearolf's father, Bert, killed his wife and daughter, Iva. Their bodies were found by Wentling. Bert Dearolf later committed suicide, authorities recalled, but Frank refused to believe that his father had taken his own life and accused Wentling. Yesterday he appeared at the Wentling farm.

The Wentlings gave him dinner. Later he forced young Reuben to call his father and wounded Wentling with two shots, the daughter told police. The son was killed by a bullet in the temple. The girl grappled with the assailant, then took refuge with her parents in an upstairs room.

GIRL ATACKED TWICE

Dearolf disappeared, enabling Wentling to stagger to a neighboring farm, according to the girl's story. Later the nephew returned and broke into the bedroom, forcing mother and daughter to leap from a window, Mrs. Wentling was able to limp to the neighboring house. The daughter, also injured, was dragged into a nearby woods where she said Dearolf attacked her.

Later, as she tried to drive off in the family car, Dearolf attacked her again, she charged. Two h found her lying in the road.

Nazi Invasion Bases Hammered by RAF

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 28 (INS)—Alarmed at the possibility that Hitler's Christmas visit to the French channel ports may have been the prelude to a German invasion attempt, the British Royal Air Force has launched one of the most intensive offensives yet made to smash any German invasion plans.

In the latest attack last night the RAF struck with terrific force at German bases from Norway to Normandy.

Tons of high explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped on docks, shipping, airfields and troop barracks all along the coasts of France, Belgium, Holland and part of Norway.

While British Blenheim bombers blasted away at the docks and coastal bases, bombers of the British coastal command harassed the movement of German merchant shipping along the continental coast.

Particularly strong attacks were made last night on the docks at Cherbourg, the German-held submarine and naval base at Lorient, and an airdrome at Bordeaux.

British bombers made two attacks on Lorient docks in Nazi-occupied France today, the air ministry said.

Braving German fighter planes and anti-aircraft fire, a strong force of British coastal command bombers raided the Lorient docks. Hits were observed by the British fliers, all of whom returned safely.

At Bordeaux the British fliers had difficulty in finding their targets because of bad weather, but many bombs were sent to burst alongside hangars.

London Hard Hit As Raids Resume

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP)—One of the heaviest night bombing attacks of the war on London left no doubt today that the battle of Britain, interrupted by an unofficial Christmas truce, was on again in earnest.

Wave after wave of German bombers attacked the capital last night in a raid which, while it lasted, equalled in intensity any in the past.

A terse government statement acknowledged that "a number" of people were killed and that "many dwellings were destroyed or damaged.

Crew Safe, Hub Kin Rejoice

Relatives and friends of New England seamen on the oil tanker Charles Pratt rejoiced today at word from New York that the men had been saved after the vessel was sunk off West Africa

"He's safe—that's the best Christmas present we could expect!" said Mrs. Elfride Gundersen, mother of Ralph Hansen, Harvard ave., Allston, one of the crew.

Mrs. William M. Strang of Central st., Somerville, wife of the tanker's chief engineer, fervently uttered two words at news of her husband's rescue:

"Thank God!"

As she held her two small children, Jean, 2, and Ellen, 2½ months, in her arms, Mrs. Strang appeared on the verge of breaking down in tears of relief and joy.

Other New Englanders saved from the ill-fated tanker included Stanley N. Broderick, 32, of Barnet Center, Vt., father of two; Thomas Duffy, New Haven, Conn., and David F. Davidson, Hamden, Conn.

The Charles Pratt was owned by the Panama Transport Company, a Standard Oil subsidiary, and was one of 17 New Jersey Standard Oil vessels transferred to Panamanian registry before President Roosevelt proclaimed combat zones in the war.

The vessel left Aruba, Netherlands Island near Venezuela, Dec. 5 with 5,000,000 gallons of oil consigned to the British-Mexican Petroleum Company at Freetown.

Greek Sub Sinks 3 Italian Ships

ATHENS, Dec. 28 (AP)—A Greek submarine has attacked an Italian convoy in the Adriatic and sunk three steamers, it was officially announced tonight. The submarine was said to have returned safely.

The submarine Papanicolis, the official statement said, encountered the convoy in the Adriatic and, despite the fact it was guarded by Italian destroyers, fired all her torpedoes at effective range.

The three ships sunk were said to total between 25,000 and 30,000 tons.

ROME, Dec. 28 (AP)—An Italian plane torpedoed and sank a 5000-ton steamer in the Mediterranean, the high command reported today, while acknowledging the failure of an Italian submarine to return from the Atlantic.

ENGLAND HAS MONEY TO PAY UNTIL FALL '41

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP)—A preliminary audit of British resources in the United States has revealed, authoritative sources disclosed today, that Great Britain will run out of cash to pay for purchases of arms and munitions here "in the early autumn" of next year.

The preliminary examination of Britain's financial condition, made by U. S. Treasury experts, established that the end of cash payments was approaching, it was stated. A more detailed study of the British treasury's "balance sheet" now is under way.

That detailed analysis, informed sources said, was being made to determine as precisely as possible British capacity to pay for purchases here, and the probable calendar date on which British cash would be exhausted.

The Treasury's study also will provide answers to the questions President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau expect to be asked when Congress considers the problem of aid to Britain.

The British government now is paying for war supplies with gold shipped from London, payments for British goods and receipts from the sale here of British owned dollar securities.

Well informed sources said that the British treasury's balance sheet, made available to the U. S. Treasury experts, showed that Britain would be able to pay cash for all ships, planes and other war implements and supplies now on order, but could not pay cash for the tremendous future orders which Britain wants to place immediately.

VICHY, France, Dec. 28 (AP)—Sixty alleged Communists have been sent to internment camps in the last three months by police of the Puy-De-Dome department surrounding Clermont Ferrand, it was disclosed here today.

Italians Flee Greek Bayonets

ATHENS, Dec. 28 (AP)—Greeks besieging Tepeleni on the middle Albania battlefront were reported today to have wrested domination of the town from the Italians with bayonet charges and shellfire.

"Crumbling" Italian resistance had brought the battle to the "decisive stage," Greek dispatches said.

Italian artillery was said to be withdrawing from elevated positions back of the town.

"Their forts were literally destroyed by the continuous pounding of our guns," one dispatch said.

"Our infantrymen stormed enemy lines with bayonets. They could not face the bayonets and retreated.

Crews Get War Wages In Indian Ocean

SHANGHAI, Dec. 28 (AP)—Crews of British ships plying between Hongkong and India are being paid war-time bonuses because of the danger from Nazi raiders in the Indian ocean, travelers returning from Hongkong reported today

Two German merchant vessels equipped as raiders were said to have sailed recently from Kobe, Japan. The travelers said these raiders had sunk more than 20 Norwegian ships and attacked a number of British vessels recently.

Government Half-Year Spending Five Billion

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (INS)—Government spending passed the $5,000,000,000 mark with the current fiscal year just five days short of the half-way point, the Treasury reported today. Total government spending for fiscal year 1941 went to $5,005,471,942 on Dec. 26, the latest Treasury figures disclosed.

This spending carried the public debt to $44,998,148,740—just a shade below the old statutory debt limit. The debt a year ago on the same date was $41,928,184,884.

38,114 CAPTURED IN LIBYA

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 28 (AP)—British General Headquarters announced today that 38,114 prisoners taken in the great offensive against Italian Libya had been counted.

They included 24,845 Italian officers and other ranks, the communique said. The remainder were non-Italian soldiers.

The British said that "the concentration of our forces investing Bardia is proceeding smoothly, while our artillery continues to harass the Italian garrison."

FONTIER BASE

Bardia is a frontier base, just within Libya, now in its 13th day of siege. Captured Italian soldiers said that Premier Mussolini himself had ordered the garrison to be "ready to die rather than give up."

"Operations by our mobile detachments to clear the country to the westward are proceeding," the British communique said.

Italian prisoners predicted that Bardia would become a "second Alcazar."

FALL INEVITABLE

They referred to the 10-week defense during the Spanish Civil War of Spain's "West Point" at Toledo by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces, which ultimately were rescued. But the Italians at Bardia apparently hold little hope of history repeating itself in another rescue.

The prisoners said Marshall Rodolfo Graziani, the Italian commander in North Africa, hurriedly was strengthening defenses at Tobruk, 50 miles to the west, in preparation for an expected British attack there.

The British regard the fall of Bardia, stubbornly held by a "sacrifice garrison" of 20,000 Italian troops, as inevitable.

Italians Destroy British Unit, Claim

ROME, Dec. 28 (AP)—The high command announced today that Italian motorized columns had "destroyed" a British mechanized detachment on the Bardia front with the aid of the air force, capturing crews of machines, while an Italian warship shelled the British along the Libyan coast.

chiefly as an insurance measure, it was reported here.

Concentration of Nazi troops in southwestern Rumania was expected in some quarters to put great pressure on Yugoslavia, possibly aimed at forcing the Belgrade government to accede to German wishes.

These troop concentrations also were said to be designed as a brake on reported Soviet Russian designs to occupy Moldavia and the mouth of the Danube, as well as giving Turkey reason to think twice about fulfilling her treaty with Britain or increasing her help to Greece.

The Soviets were reported to have moved 30 crack divisions into Bessarabia on the Rumanian frontier.

It was said authoritatively that King Boris III of Bulgaria informed Hitler during the Monarch's recent visit to Germany that he would abdicate rather than sanction the passage of German troops across Bulgaria toward Greece or Turkey.

British-Eire Feud Renewal Is Feared

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Rome today repeated Berlin's blunt warning of yesterday that Ireland is within the Nazi blockade zone and that American ships attempting to reach Irish ports with supplies for Britain will be subject to warlike action.

This will hold true even if the American neutrality law should be amended to exclude Ireland from the danger zone.

The corollary to this warning is obvious. If the United States has ships sunk and doesn't like it, she can go to war about it.

Associated with this situation, though not actually a part of it, is Britain's imposition of restrictions of life-blood exports to Eire (southern Ireland).

These measures which, if carried to their finality, would plunge Erie into an economic crisis, bear the earmarks of being reprisals for the refusal of the Irish government to grant Britain naval bases from which to operate against the Nazi submarine menace.

ISSUE FULL OF DYNAMITE

The resulting position is full of dynamite. It increases fears that issues growing out of the war may result in the renewal of the ancient Anglo-Irish feud which the world hoped had been buried by the agreement of 1938.

Apropos of this, Premier Eamon De Valera of Eire injected a striking remark into a Christmas Day talk which was carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System. In the course of an appeal to America to help Eire secure arms and foodstuffs, "should the blockade grow tighter," he said:

"The overshadowing anxiety at the moment seems to be today's possibility of incitement which should force our people once more to battle against Britain and the British."

Premier De Valera didn't amplify this statement, and I'm not going to try to interpret it, but it seems to speak for itself. It perhaps is natural that my mind should fly back to southern Ireland's bloody Easter Week rebellion against the English in 1916, during the World War. I was in Dublin at the height of that terrible conflict, and Mr De Valera was wielding a rifle from the windows of the postoffice as one of the leaders of the revolt.

The days of rebellion are past, for Eire is independent. But the possibility of war between the two sovereign states is present.

This crisis goes back to 1938 when the British and Eire negotiated an agreement which, among other things, provided that England should clear out of southern Ireland, transferring to Eire British admiralty property and rights at several strategic bases. These are Bantry Bay, Cobh (Queenstown) and Lough Swilly.

WHOLLY INDEPENDENT

That was the last stroke of the pen needed to make Eire indeed a wholly independent unit within the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Along came the war and the German submarine campaign which is raising havoc with British shipping. Many of the vessels have been sent to the bottom in the windlashed waters west of Ireland. One reason assigned for Britain's inability to cope fully with this menace has been lack of the Irish naval bases which, in the language of British Premier Churchill, has placed upon England a "most heavy and grievous burden."

Eire, fearing invasion and counter-invasion by the belligerents has maintained rigid neutrality, refusing to allow Britain use of bases. At the same time she has declared a policy "that this island should not be used as a base for attack on Britain."

Feeling in Britain has grown bitter. Many people have declared that Ireland should be deprived of imports brought from abroad by British convoys. Now—without any suggestion of reprisal—Britain has placed restrictions upon re-export to Ireland of several vital commodities, including fodder for cattle, and fertilizer. These cannot be re-exported without special license.

To understand the full force of this you must know that cattle raising is one of Eire's chief industries. She exports most of these animals to England. But she can't get along without imported fodder, and its lack would create a grave situation. Cutting off of fertilizer would further aggravate this position, and would also affect the food supply for human consumption.

One naturally wonders whether Britain intends to use this measure as a big stick with which to secure the naval bases. One also wonders whether Mr. De Valera's reply will be that the matter might be adjusted if Britain would use its influence to bring about the union of Ulster and Southern Ireland which the Premier has been so anxiously seeking but without apparent progress.

NAZIS CLAIM 5 SHIPS

BERLIN, Dec. 28 (AP)—The sinking of four armed British merchant ships totaling 24,340 tons and a fifth of 12,823 tons, identified as the Waiotira, was officially credited by the high command today to two German submarines.

Also, a German scouting plane was credited with dropping two heavy bombs on a merchant ship of 8000 to 10,000 tons yesterday east of the Thames mouth. Informed sources said the vessel burst into flames and presumably sank.

(Mackay Radio intercepted a message Thursday from the Waiotira saying she had been torpedoed about 400 miles southwest of the Irish coast.—Editor's note.

A "few" British planes penetrated the German-held coastal region in the night, the high command reported, but it said no bombs were dropped on German territory.

Large units of German warplanes were said to have attacked London last nights with incendiary and high explosive bombs. The high command claimed "violent explosions and large fires" in the center and eastern parts of the city "proved the strong effect of the raid."

British ships which tried to approach German-held Dunkerque on the French channel coast during the night were reported to have been shelled and turned north by long-range guns of the army and navy. "Effective" fire on shipping in the channel continued early this morning, informed sources added.

GAYDA ECHOES NAZI SHIP THREAT TO U. S.

By PERCY WINNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, Dec. 28—Apparently marking a joint Axis drive to prevent the United States from sending war supplies to Great Britain in American ships via Ireland, the Italian press today joined Germany in warning America that such a move will involve it in the European conflict.

Italy's foremost Fascist organs re-echoed the warning of the German press yesterday that American ships carrying war supplies to Britain via Ireland will be sunk on sight.

Led by such newspapers as the Popolo di Roma and the Giorale D'Italia, the Italian press warned that the Irish move would constitute an outright violation of American neutrality and would quickly lead the United States into the war.

Virginio Gayda, often called Premier Mussolini's own spokesman, writing in the Giornale d'Italia, charged American "Interventionists" were trying to provoke the Axis powers into declaring war on the United States. He warned that if American intervention in the European conflict goes too far, the United States may suddenly find itself involved in war with Japan in the Pacific.

"The Axis powers," Gayda wrote, "can immediately warn the United States that the requisitioning of Italian and German ships or use of American warships as convoys to Ireland, no matter how verbally disguised, would be an open violation of neutrality and would signify the initiative of the United States in intervention in the war."

Nazis Have Nothing To Add to Warning

BERLIN, Dec. 28 (AP)—Authorized sources said today official Germany had nothing to add to warnings issued yesterday by the inspired Nazi press to both Eire and the United States that Eire would continue in the German blockade zone, come what may.

These sources added that yesterday's editorials had been "carefully studied and found to present the problem in an excellent manner."

Weston Priest Finds Link to Ancient Man

STUDIES FINDINGS

Scientific data, of especial interest to anthropologists, which will throw a new light on the theoretical relationship between the Neanderthal man and modern man, is expected to be forthcoming from the Jesuit College at Weston during the next few months.

The source of the data, which is expected to astound professors and students of anthropology, will come in part from a former Charlestown young man, who for the past four years, has headed a Boston College Anthropological expedition in the Near East.

Completing a journey which began last June and brought the 36-year-old explorer over many thousands of miles, returning to this country by way of Asiatic and trans-Pacific routes, Rev. Joseph Doherty, S. J., was back at Weston College today, ready to make further study of his findings.

WAR STOPPED WORK

Father Doherty revealed that because of war conditions and the crisis which broke last June in the Near East, he was unable to carry on further his expedition work at this time.

The former Boston College student related also that he hopes to return to Beirut, Syria, sometime later, and there remove from prehistoric caves the skeletons and bones of modern man, estimated at over 30,000 years B. C.

Known as the Libanensis man Father Doherty said the gravevards of prehistoric Syria had yielded valuable evidence which he expects to trace modern mankind back at least 30,000 years B. C.

Bones, evidently those of two children, seven and eight years of age, who lived in that period, were unearthed by the Boston College expedition.

Because of the great exactness and infinite pains required to remove the precious remains from their coats of stone and clay Father Doherty reluctantly voted to leave the expedition's findings until later.

However, considerable data was gathered and photographs made of the cave, and it is this material that Father Doherty will peruse considerable time working on at Weston College.

DIFFICULT WORK

He hopes that by next summer when various Scientific Congresses are in session that he will have astounding facts and material to present collegaue anthropologists and scientists.

How Father Doherty, along with Reverends George Mahan, S. J., of Dorchester, and Joseph Murphy, S. J., of Lexington, worked laboriously in the Syrian Cave areas of the Far East for the Newton institution, were related.

A staff of nearly two score workmen, natives of the Far East along with the three Jesuits worked from early morning until nightfall with pick and shovel in the hopes of aiding science.

The finding of the ancient skeletons however, rewarded the anthropology student prospects and it is expected that if war conditions in Europe subside in the near future they will be able to raise sufficient funds to return to their work in the Far East.

FOG BLANKETS COAST; TWO FISHERMEN SAFE

Two Rockport fishermen, feared lost off Cape Ann in heavy fog that blanketed the New England coast, reached their home port in safety today.

The pair, Boynton Morse, 35, and Robert Wheetenan, 27, said they anchored their boat, the Joan, offshore over night because of hazardous navigating conditions.

Meanwhile, coastwise shipping was crippled by the prevailing mist. No word had been received at Portland, Me., from the collier Alexander, overdue from Norfolk, Va., while the freighter William J. Salman, Portland-bound from Texas, radioed that she was fogbound at Vineyard Haven.

The Eastern Steamship liner St John from New York reached her Boston dock two and half hours late. The Savannah liner City of Atlanta, Boston-bound from New York, was reported groping slowly through the Cape Cod canal six to eight hours behind schedule.

Held at Boston long after their sailing dates were the collier Berkshire, bound for Newport News, and the freighters Osage and Mormacgull, bound respectively for southern ports and New York.

SLIPPERY ROADS

Inland, the mist and rain caused slippery highway conditions. In the central and western parts of Massachusetts, as well as sections of New Hampshire, sanding crews worked during the night, although fresh ice was reported forming over the sanded roads.

Warmer weather, with continued mist turning into rain, was predicted by forecasters for tonight and Sunday throughout New England.

Why Cockroaches Thrive on Poison No Longer Secret

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28 (AP)

The secret is out of why it is hard to poison a cockroach.

He carries in his stomach some parasites which like poison and eat it, to his great relief. This trick was described to the American Ass'n for the Advancement of Science today by four U. S. Bureau of Entomology men from Beltsville, Md., Dr. J. F. Yeager, Dr. E. R. McGorran, Sam C. Munson and E. L. Mayer.

By studying the parasites they found that there may be more than one kind, each a "specialist" in one sort of poison.

New G.O.P. Jobs Hit By Taxpayer Group

The legality and need of recently appointed "political campaigners" of Governor Saltonstall to State jobs will be challenged by Norman MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations, he announced today.

Disturbed over the after-election appointments made by the Governor since Nov. 30, MacDonald stated that the Chief Executive was breaking his campaign promise to keep the state payroll down to a minimum.

MacDonald took direct issue with the Governor over the appointment of 10 deputy income tax collectors and three temporary examiners in the state insurance division, which will cost the taxpayers an additional $40,000 annually.

FIRED CURLEY MEN

The taxpayers' spokesman pointed out that in August, 1939, Gov. Saltonstall was instrumental for economic reasons in the dismissal of 15 tax assessors, all former Gov. Curley appointees.

"If the state tax division has been able to carry on their work in an efficient manner since August, 1939, I am at a loss to explain why they must be put on the state payrolls at this time, especially when the Governor publicly proclaims that he is going to practice economy on Beacon Hill," MacDonald said.

Thomas M. Joyce, assistant executive director of the taxpayers' group, has been assigned by MacDonald to investigate the appointments from a legal standpoint.

Joyce pointed out that he doubted the legality of the Governor's appointments, quoting Section 27 of Chapter 29.

STATUTE CITED

The chapter reads:

"No officer or board shall incur a new or unusual expense, make a permonent contract, increase a salary or employ a new clerk, assistant or other subordinate unless a sufficient apropriation to cover the expense thereof has ben made by the General Court."

This particular phase of the law, the taxpayers' group declared, would have a great effect on the recent appointments of former President of the Senate Joseph R. Cotton, who resigned as chairman of the public utilities commission to fill the newly created position of counsel to the governor at $6000 yearly, and that of William E. Bell, Jr., asistant governor's secretary, to position os assistant secretary of the State Tax Appelate Board at $3000 annually.

The last legal tie to her marriage to Singer Al Jolson today had been cut by Ruby Keeler (here), dancer-actress, as she obtained her final divorce decree in Hollywood. A year ago Miss Keeler obtained an interlocutory decree after testifying Jolson embarrassed her by calling her "stupid."

PAGANISM IS CALLED BIG PERIL

There is no question that the powerful dictators of the present generation are trying to impose a pagan world upon us, Cong. John W. McCormick of South Boston declared in an address here.

At the same time the majority leader of the House of Representatives declared he saw "no necessity for the United States to enter the present conflict."

There is necessity, however, for this country, supported by public opinion, to view conditions from a realistic angle and to build up a strong national defense to protect the nation against possible attack from abroad, he said, and continued:

"We are confronted with an economic revolution that started in those countries where two economic groups existed; one, the few, possessing the greater part of the wealth and property of a nation; and the other, the great mass, exploited in some cases for generations and living and merely existing under terrible conditions of distress. In those countries, very little, if any middle class economic group existed.

"A broad, strong middle class economic group, with a strong spiritual life existing in a country where reasonable economic conditions exist, is the bulwark of a strong nation.

"With such conditions existing, the people of those countries overthrew their existing form of government, and accepted the dictator, in the hope, as promised, they would obtain some degree of economic security, sacrificing, as they did, all of the rights of an individual. The history of the present era shows that they sacrificed on the altars of false promises the precious rights of a free citizen, and did not receive the economic security promised. It therefore, behooves us in America to benefit from their experience.

"We in America must see that the family life of our country is preserved—that there continues to exist a strong, broad middle class that will protect the weak against the unscrupulous strong. We must see that the problems of today are met by the passage of social legislation that will endure to the benefit of our people as a whole."

WELFARE OF FAMILIES STRESSED IN DRAFT

Draftees should be given any reasonable doubt as to their family status, Col. Ralph M. Smith, assistant state director of selective service organization, today advised heads of local draft boards.

Draft heads met in all-day conference at the State House to prepare them for the task of drafting nearly 20,000 registrants in the next few months.

Col. Smith pointed out that the federal officials have taken the position that the maintenance of the family as a unit is of great importance to the national interest and that a wife should not be separated from her husband or a mother from her son if the individual case did not warrant such action.

Married men without dependents on his individual earning power, it was pointed out, should be placed in the same category as those with no one to support.

Also the local boards, he said, should scrutinize carefully the circumstances attending marriages during the draft period.

ATTY. G. R. GRANT DIES

George R. Grant, General attorney for the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., since 1917, died today of a heart attack at his home in Carisbrooke rd., Wellesley.

Child Beaten As She Comes To Ma's Aid

Brutally beaten by a man as she battled to protect her mother, 11-year-old Margaret Frieberger of Bickford st., Jamaica Plain, was taken to City Hospital today with serious injuries.

The child was knocked unconscious, police said, at the height of a row when a neighbor first struck her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Frieberger, 29, then turned on the girl and rained blows on her head.

City Hospital physicians said three teeth were loosened, one eye blackened, and that Margaret suffered a concussion of the brain.

The girl was with her mother, taking home a relative who had become ill while visiting the Frieberger home. The young mother has five other children and has been widowed for three years.

This Check Sheet, together with the other five Check Sheets appearing from Monday, December 23, to Saturday, December 28, inclusive, must be brought or mailed to the Game of Check, Box 2337, Boston Record-American, Boston, Mass., so that they will be in our office or in the mails postmarked no later than midnight, Saturday, January 4, together with 10c in coin.

NOTICE!

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS MUST BE IN OUR OFFICE OR IN THE MAIL POST-MARKED NO LATER THAN

MIDNIGHT TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S THE DEADLINE! You MUST submit your answers to last week's Check Sheets (Tenth Series Nos. 55-60) so that they will be in our office or in the mails bearing a postmark of no later than midnight, tonight, if you want to remain eligible to win a prize.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

For six days it was repeatedly announced in this newspaper that new entries to the Game of Check would be closed on November 23rd, at midnight, and that no new entries would be considered as eligible for a prize unless the envelope bore the postmark of midnight, November 23rd, or earlier.

We have received a number of entries, which have come in after this announced deadline, and are still receiving such late entries. In fairness to all contestants, we wish it understood that none of these entries which have come in after the announced deadline, will be considered as eligible for a prize, and that all such entries have been duly disqualified in view of this. If a contestant can submit an affidavit from his local postmaster stating that mail is not picked up in the late hours of Saturday evening and can prove thereby that his entry was placed in the mails before the stated deadline, then that entry will be permitted as qualified.

We wish to advise readers NOT to send in further entries for the first nine weeks series, since same will not be considered and that deadlines for succeeding weeks must be observed.

We also wish to advise that readers who have sent in late entries, may call at this office for a refund, since we have no wish to retain the entry fees of late contestants who cannot conform under the circumstances to qualify for a prize.

Contestants are asked to observe future deadline dates, so as not to be disqualified.

'Kitty Foyle,' Starring Ginger Rogers, at Keith's Tuesday

GINGER ROGERS plays the title role in RKO Radio's version of Christopher Morley's best-selling novel, "Kitty Foyle," in which Dennis Morgan is importantly cast. It will be seen at Keith-Memorial Theater for the week starting Tuesday.

Defense Feature At the Old South

Old South Newsreel Theater's latest March of Time release presenting America's gigantic defense-building program.

Old South Newsreel Theater's program through Wednesday features "Labor and Defense-1941,"

Hectic Romance On Screen

"Kitty Foyle," RKO Radio's film version of Christopher Morley's best selling novel starring a working girl brings Ginger Rogers to the Keith Memorial screen on Tuesday.

Co-featured is "The Saint in Palm Springs," with George Sanders, and as an extra added attraction the latest edition of "Information Please" with Ruth Gordon, famous stage and screen star, as guest expert.

Dealing with the colorful career of a modern white-collar girl, "Kitty Foyle" derives much of its suspense and interest from the hectic romance between Miss Rogers and Dennis Morgan, a young society man.

They marry, but she subsequently leaves him to keep from wrecking his life. At this point a young doctor appears and the dramatic consequences that arise when Kitty is compelled to make a decision regarding the two men, comprises the stirring conclusion of the picture.

Sam Wood directed this picture in which Miss Rogers has two leading men, Morgan and James Craig. Such favorites as Eduardo Cianelli, Ernest Cossart, Gladys Cooper and Odette Myrtil head the supporting cast.

"The Saint in Palm Springs" is George Sanders' latest in the series which portrays him as a modern Jimmy Valentine. Sanders takes public interest to heart and aids the police in clearing up an unsolved mystery to the satisfaction of all, in the meantime keeping his identity as "The Saint" unknown. Also in the cast are Wendy Barrie and Linda Hayes.

Duchin Coming For Premiere

The "Lady in the Dark" premiere Monday at the Colonial Theater will bring two of the country's top band leaders, Eddie Duchin and Leo Reisman, to Boston for professional reasons. Duchin will make two recordings of Kurt Weill's and Ira Gershwin's songs from "Lady in the Dark" for Columbia, and Reisman will make four recordings for Victor. Decca is considering making a complete album of the score of the new musical play for release in the near future.

Also coming over from New York for the opening will be George S. and Beatrice Kaufman, Oscar Levant, Max Gordon, Alexander Woollcott, Richard Aldrich, and many others.

BUBBLES YVONNE
Stars at Casino Monday

Casino's New Show Monday

Burlesque comes back to the Casino on Hanover street Monday in stellar style, with Gladys Clark, Bubbles Yvonne, Irma Vogelee and Elinor Walent as the dancing belles. Tommy Raft is announced as leading comedian.

In addition to the three regular daily performances there will be a gala midnight show next Tuesday, New Year's Eve, starting at 11:30. This is an old burlesque custom, dear to the fans, and the Casino will make the most of it, putting on one of its merriest and most lavish productions, all under Ed Ryan's direction.

Others listed are Ben Hamilton, Bobby Faye and Bobby Goodman. Besides the burlesque there will be vaudeville specialties and two feature films.

Margie Hart Howard's Star

At the Old Howard Margie Hart is known as the "one and only." Like other outstanding burlesque queens, she has a dance style all her own. A peppy redhead, she excells in performances that keep the boys saying that there is nothing like burlesque. Margie will head the cast coming to the West End house Monday in the "Broadway Scandals." Other dancing sirens in the show are Evelyn Brooks and Sally O'Day.

Margie Hart

John Barry and Joe Freed will do their stuff in the comedy scenes. Also featured are Mickey Pearl, dancer who had all Atlantic City in cheers recently; the St. Onge acrobatic trio, "Rubberlegs" Williams, Nixon and Andre; Len Lenihan, Wen Miller and Louise Rudy.

There will be two midnight shows, the first on Tuesday, New Year's Eve, and later the regular Friday 11:30 carnival.

ERROL FLYNN IN 'SANTA FE TRAIL' AT MET ON HOLIDAY

Reunited With DeHavilland

Errol Flynn, that handsome screen swashbuckler, is waving sabers, firing pistols, flailing fists and galloping horses again in "Santa Fe Trail," which is to have its local debut on New Year's Day on the Metropolitan screen.

And back of the camera was the old master of fast action and solecisms, Michael Curtiz, the director credited with "discovering" Flynn (it was in "Captain Blood") and who has guided Errol through six or seven pictures since that time.

Back too, in Flynn's arms, is Olivia de Havilland, just to make the reunion complete. Starting with that same "Captain Blood," they have been in a half-dozen or more pictures together, indicating that Warner Brothers consider it a sort of "by public demand" obligation.

The publicity department, however, points out that "Santa Fe Trail" is not following any formula just because Olivia, Errol and Curtiz are together again. The story is several of the most exciting chapters right out of our American history books, knit together in dramatic pattern by Virginia-born Robert Buckner, Warner studio scenarist.

Raymond Massey, Canadian-born actor who won first stage training in England and established himself solidly as Abraham Lincoln before American audiences, plays the fanatical John Brown, Kansas abolitionist whom Lincoln, like all other solid men of the time, rates a traitor and an enemy.

The co-feature, "A Night At Earl Carroll's," Paramount musical, features Ken Murray, Lillian Cornell and Brenda and Cobina.

RONALD REAGAN, shown with Olivia de Havilland, gives Errol Flynn romantic competition in "Santa Fe Trail," which brings yesterday's history to the Met screen on New Year's Day.

FILMS AT OLYMPIA

Robert Taylor and Norma Shearer are co-starred in "Escape," and Monday features Mary Astor in a dual role, continuing through Tuesday at Wesley and Olympia Co-features: "Hudson's Bay" with Paul Kelly and Patricia Morison.

WITH ROBUST CHILDISH enthusiasm several hundred offspring of Junior League members and friends applauded the League Players' performance of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Peabody Playhouse yesterday afternoon . . .

Cooking

Tops Among '41 Treats

By MARTHA LEE

A New Year surely calls for new delicacies on the table. The following tested recipes have been chosen carefully and are offered as 1941 treats:

PINEAPPLE NEW YEAR'S CUP

2 oranges
Whole cloves
1 cup sugar
2 cups water
3 cups canned unsweetened pineapple juice
Juice of 1 lemon
Grated nutmeg

Wash oranges and stick with cloves. Bring sugar and water to a boil and add oranges, cover and simmer until oranges are tender. Remove oranges, strain liquid in which they have been simmered, add to pineapple juice which has been brought to a boil, but not boiled. Stir in lemon juice. Serve hot in small cups with a dash of nutmeg. Cut oranges in small pieces and add one or two to each cup. Makes 1 quart.

OLD COUNTRY HOLIDAY PUDDING

1 cup flour
1½ cups breadcrumbs
½ lb. suet
1 1-3 cups light brown sugar
Juice of half a lemon
Juice of 1 orange
¾ cup currants
¾ cup Sultana raisins
1 split (or a little more than ½) of 1 pint bottle stout
1½ cups seeded raisins
½ cup candied mixed peel
1 apple
¼ lb. prunes
1 tsp. mixed spice
3 eggs
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. wine glass rum

Mix ingredients thoroughly. Steam for 4 hours. Serves eight to ten. Serve with hard sauce or hot wine sauce. To serve in the traditional manner, pour brandy around the pudding and bring it flaming to the table.

SEA FOOD COCKTAIL

1 cup shrimp, lobster, crab, tuna or a combination of these
½ cup finely cut celery
¾ cup tomato catsup
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tbsp. finely cut chives or onion

Mix ingredients. Chill thoroughly. Serve in cocktail glasses. Accompany with lemon quarters. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

MAGIC FRUIT CAKE

1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1 cup chopped walnut meats
¼ lb. (3 cups) shredded cocoanut
1 lb. (2 cups) pitted dates, coarsely chopped

Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk, chopped walnut meats, shredded cocoanut, and dates which have been coarsely chopped. Pack in a greased loaf pan (8x5x3 inches). Bake in moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes, or until brown. Remove from pan and allow to cool thoroughly. Cut into thin slices.

Smart Set Fashions

Pleats All Over

THIS IS an unusual dress, from the Palm Beach collection designed by Jean Shlumberger . . . for it is pleated from shoulder to hem, including the sleeves! There will never be a dull sartorial moment, to judge by some other ideas in this collection. There is a "stair step" waistline rising from a low point in front to the natural waistline at the sides, and straight at the natural waistline in back . . . dresses of all-over shirred chiffon . . . white organdy with black chenille polka dots trimming a simple black dress. The one illustrated is of white rajah, with inch box pleats all over, and magenta red appliqued at the shoulders, neck and waistline—ANNICE BRINK.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

I AM WORKING in an office.

I hate offices. I want to kick down the walls; then go out and blow up the streets—and let the grass come back again, and the wide sunlight, and the rough, free wind.

Why, I wonder, do men, who might build paradises for themselves, bind themselves instead in rat runways?

I think these things to myself as I sit working. But it is hard to hold myself to my work. It is hard to forget the deep woods, where I have been living and the sweet silence.

So I prowl around, hating walls, hating sounds, thinking how dreadful city life is. These miles of dark, filthy alleys these acres of ugly, huddled roofs—how hopeless they make our human life seem! If this is all we can do for ourselves after millions of years of opportunity—

Abruptly I stop—look up. Vaulting from out the darkness of the alleys, towering above the meanness of the roofs there rises a tall building.

It is so tall that the city seems to lie in a little scummy pool about its base. Up and up its great shaft soars, out of the noise and filth, the conflict and confusion—into the endless blue.

And against that blue, it no longer seems a building. Its substance vanishes. It is a gleaming fountain—a shimmering mirage—a white dream.

And suddenly I realize that that is exactly what it is—a dream—the soaring symbol of our troubled, human dream.

Just as this building rose triumphant out of the filth of alleys, the darkness of roofs, so did the dream which created it rise above the ignorance and ugliness of our stupid spirits.

Wilfully we wall ourselves into dark rat-ways of spirit and flesh. But out of those rat-ways we send a shining signal soaring up to God!

I THOUGHT of all of us—the confusion in me, the confusion in you—the loneliness and malice, the hunger and hate—the whole ugly clutter which we have made out of lives which might have been so beautiful and free. Day after day, year after year—from birth to death—we crawl through that clutter, grieving, rebelling.

All this we do to ourselves. And yet—

Always, in every life there is a Tall Building!

Always, above the darkness, rises some clean hope, some shining faith—some shaft of beauty signaling to God.

You Can Be Beautiful

'Wind-Weather Lotion' Offer Is Seasonal Bargain

By ARLINE GOULD

THEY COULDN'T have timed a spectacular half-price sale better on one of the most famous protective lotions there is, than its sponsors did by readying it to sell for 50c instead of a dollar during the next two weeks.

Here's the explanation of the reason your skin gets rough and weathered in the wintertime . . . the creators of this lotion tell us that contraction of the pores, from the cold, drives blood away from the surface. And in a little while skin loses its smooth fine texture . . .

It's not a mere matter of vanity, then . . . the necessity of having plenty of oil-replenishing lotion on hand . . . though it's true that her arms and shoulders will look very much nicer, and smoother, if she would if you neglected a generous splash of this lotion after your shower.

It's a peach-pink liquid, unusually frothy and light in texture . . . but how it does smooth and protect. And the 8-ounce bottle is as generous as it is decorative. It has to be. Everyone in the house will dive for it, if you have only one on hand. So be forsighted and designate this bottle for Junior, that for Dad, and another for Sister . . . and no squabbles will result.

Men's faces are as [illegible] as the girls' . . . and [illegible] hands. As for the small boy who can appear with such woeful weather cracks on his hands after playing in the snow . . . it's just as necessary to see that he uses the lotion as often as he washes his hands (or as few times as he manages to get away with).

If you'd like to learn about this half-price sale on a famous "wind and weather lotion," a dollar size for 50 cents, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Martin Pattern

Pattern 9483 may be ordered only in girls' sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12, skirt and calot, requires 1⅝ yards 54-inch fabric; shirt, 1¼ yards contrast.

To get this pattern send 15 cents to Boston Evening American Pattern Department, 272 West 18th st., New York, N. Y.

Manners

15th Wedding Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I will appreciate it very much if you will tell me what is the proper gift for a Fifteenth Wedding Anniversary. M. R.

The fifteenth wedding anniversary symbol is crystal, and a very lovely one too, especially when such beautiful crystal and glass are offered at us at such reasonable prices.

However, it should be said that people do not abide by the given symbols for wedding anniversaries as strictly as they did formerly. They are just as apt to disregard the symbol, if they decide that something else would be more appropriate and welcome to the home of the couple who are celebrating their anniversary.

Study Art of Public Speaking

A new member, but she makes a charming impression by her poise in speaking, her knowledge of parliamentary rules!

KNOW PARLIAMENTARY FORM

No awkward fumbling as she presents a motion to her club. By raising her hand she catches the chairman's eye and when he speaks her name she offers her motion in correct form: "Mr. Chairman, I move that—" When the motion has been seconded and the chairman asks for discussion she knows it's her place to speak first and she does so without awkward er-ers.

Such smoothness isn't difficult to acquire.

Become a convincing speaker! Our 40-page booklet, Self Instruction in Public Speaking, tells how to train your voice, prepare and deliver speeches effectively. Gives parliamentary rules, sample speeches for many occasions such as greetings, nominations. Advises radio speakers.

Love

She'll Get No Alimony

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We've been married about ten years and whenever I go out with my husband he flirts with other girls. When I ask him not to embarrass me, he tells me he doesn't care and therefore can't make me do so.

When I suggested a divorce he said if I left him he wouldn't pay me alimony and threatened all sorts of things. We have three lovely children and he is very good to them. However, if I leave him I couldn't go out to earn money for our support, as the children are too small to leave alone. Please tell me what to do to make him stop his philandering. Y.

In your place I'd ignore this part of your husband's. That's a form of silliness some men seem to think is cute. I get letters from young girls saying how bored they get with these married men who try to make love to them in the presence of their wives.

As he's good to the children, I don't believe he's likely to go much farther than his public love making. Try to take his weakness good-humoredly. Don't nag him about it.

THE Federal Government's registration of aliens has ended with the expected last-minute rush of hundreds to beat the deadline.

A total of 153,583 non-citizens have volunteered their fingerprints and given the required information about themselves in the 26 cities and towns that c[illegible]se the Boston postal district.

This number is surprisingly smaller than the estimates of Postmaster Tague and other officials who believed that at least two hundred thousand aliens would register.

The most reasonable explanation is that many persons who have come here from Europe and Asia are defying the law and refusing to obey it.

To them, apparently, the penalty of $1000 fine and six months in jail means nothing.

It is hard to feel sympathetic for such people.

They are enjoying all the privileges of one of the world's few remaining free countries.

They can worship as they please, hold any kind of job their education and ability permit, put money in banks, own property and have police and fire protection.

But their refusal to register, shows that they are disposed to assume none of the obligations.

For this reason, each slacker alien should be apprehended and punished.

If it is possible to return him to the country from which he came, he should be deported without delay.

NEW ENGLAND HAILS

the decision of the Clyde-Mallory Line to postpone a shut-down at the Port of Boston.

The continuation of service encourages everyone to believe that conferences and the possibility of governmental assistance will enable Clyde-Mallory vessels to stop here for a long time in the future.

One of our big troubles in the past has been our tendency to ignore the shipping industry and to do little or nothing to help it.

Because of this apathy, for which we have only ourselves to blame, we have lost millions of dollars in business and sacrificed hundreds of jobs.

And while we slept, other ports, notably New York, attracted commerce and harvested the dividends.

BUT WE ARE WAKING UP!

We are proving it by our anxiety over shipping lines that threaten to leave us.

Even more convincingly, we are also proving it by considering ways to enlarge and expand our New England ship building industry, which at one time was the greatest and most prosperous in the world.

NAVAL AUTHORITIES

seem to favor Weymouth as a site for the nation's newly contemplated $5,000,000 blimp site.

Lighter-than-air craft operating from this base is to be used primarily in anti-mine and submarine patrol work.

Men of the distinction of Capt. Charles E. Rosendahl, who has been conducting a survey to find the location best suited for blimp hangars, doubtlessly know their business.

They can be trusted to consider all factors and angles before reaching a decision.

Just the same, many laymen will continue to believe that the Greater Boston area, of which Weymouth is a part, is having a much too great concentration of potential bomb targets.

Within a few miles of each other, there are Fore River Shipyards, Squantum base, Hingham ammunition depot and huge oil storage tanks.

National interest and public safety might be better served by a wider separation of these important defence adjuncts.

AMERICAN FAMILIES

are becoming alarmingly small and few.

For the first time in history the typical home contains only four persons.

The Census Bureau, analyzing the results of the 1940 census, reports that the contemporary household actually has an average of 3.8 members.

Official Washington offers no reason for the situation.

The obvious and probably best explanation is the nation's failure to solve the problems of the depression.

Young men who could not afford to support themselves have been reluctant to assume the additional responsibility of homes.

However, the current defense spending is providing temporary employment for thousands, and large numbers that have postponed matrimony because of economic necessity may be expected to wed in the next few months.

This is particularly true in Boston, where marriages are already on the increase.

Three years ago, in 1937, the total for the year was 7817.

This year they will exceed 9700.

On The Side

THE 'Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse is referred to as "film's greatest moneymaker." Most profitable picture of all time was "The Singing Fool" starring Al Jolson. Stage's greatest money maker was "Rip Van Winkle," which ran 40 weeks a year for 50 years . . . Once more investigation reveals that men who marry widows have the best chance for happiness . . . An old-time film fan is one who can remember Wally Van in "Love, Luck and Gasoline" . . . In England those in charge of a home are not officially referred to as "housewives" but "home managers." If you are handling a house, lady, and have occasion to fill out a form there is nothing to prevent you from putting "home manager" opposite "occupation."

BRIEFLY: How do you dress, young woman, when you go looking for a job? Consider this excerpt from a business paper: "Bright colored shoes, hoop-earrings or bright red finger nails label a girl as untouchable from an employer's standpoint" . . . [illegible] was a proud resident of Kenosha, Wis., "gave the world C. Latham Sholes, inventor of the typewriter, Nash motors and Simmons beds." And, your town, sir, what are its outstanding achievements, if any?

KISSING: Interviewed on kissing before the cameras, the young women of Hollywood were almost unanimous in saying such osculation was "all in the day's work" and "didn't mean a thing." A man of science decided to check on these statements with something called an electrocardigraph. This revealed, for example, when Dorothy Lamour was kissed before a camera her pulse jumped from 84 to 110. Rosalind Russell, who had said: "A kiss before the camera is really nothing, really it isn't," showed a rise in pulse even greater than that of Miss Lamour.

ASIDES: That auto speed record breaker, Sir Malcolm Campbell, drove a 2350-horsepower Rolls-Royce. Once this car was started it couldn't go slower than 140 miles-per-hour. Sir Malcolm with this car got one-quarter of a mile to a gallon of gas and his tires lasted only three minutes . . . "Rags are royal raiment when worn for virtue's sake!" was first spoken in a melodrama, "The White Slave." And "There's dirty work at the cross-roads" is a line from a play having the quaint title "No Wedding Bells for Him" . . . After a careful study of the matter I have decided hereafter instead of betting my two dollars for show, I will bet for place. And if I wager on a longshot, which I rarely do, I will put the two smackers right on the animal's nose.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Friday—I had a most unique experience yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss have turned their house and grounds, known as Dumbarton Oaks, in Georgetown, over to Harvard University. They invited me to bring my mother-in-law, Mrs. James Roosevelt and Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt to see the house before they, themselves, left it.

Here is a collection of books and objects of art from about the second century up to the 15th or 16th century. For me, the dominating thing in the museum section is the bronze prancing horse which is so full of life and action.

I can imagine nothing more delightful than being a student at Dumbarton Oaks. The atmosphere surrounding the student will be simple and severe, but he will have a wealth of books, textiles and beautiful things around him. I am sure that any professor given an opportunity to teach in these surroundings will find it very inspiring and that living in the house will be comfortable and conducive to study.

BISHOP ATWOOD came to tea. Our rather large household straggled in and out and, just before dinner, Franklin, Jr., and one of his friends and I had a grand swim.

At 8 o'clock, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau, with Joan and Bob, and some other young debutantes and their escorts, came to dine. At 10 o'clock promptly, most of the guests were assembled and we received in the Blue Room before the dance. The President greeted all the first arrivals, but I fear he missed those who came late.

I was sorry he could not have stayed away from work long enough to watch the young people dance. We seem to have come back this year to full tulle skirts, and they certainly add to the charm of the picture on the dance floor. The many colors in the dresses of the girls made the beautiful East Room look like a summer flower garden.

Even the members of the orchestra seemed to enjoy themselves. They were particularly kind to me, for they played many waltzes which I noticed the young people are enjoying, too, these days. The Conga seems to be a very popular dance, which I had not seen before. It gives a real opportunity for acting as well as dancing and I enjoyed watching the way the various boys and girls danced it.

Franklin, Jr., Henry and Bob Morgenthau decided that a party always left a happier memory if it came to an end when everybody was still having a good time, so at 3 o'clock the orchestra played "Good Night Ladies." No one paid any attention, and finally Sidney and his orchestra played the "Star Spangled Banner," so that everyone had to stop dancing and join the singing. That ended, what for me, was a delightful evening.

GLENDA FARRELL AIDE WINS ROLE

Glenda Farrell

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—Edith Craig, widow of Richard Craig, the vaudeville star, has been understudying Glenda Farrell in "Separate Rooms." Last week she was assigned a small speaking part in that show . . . Next door to Sardi's restaurant, on W. 44th, is a ticket-broker who has the listings of the current shows on a bulletin board in his window. When any of his favorites appear in shows, he lists their names as stars, on the bulletin board, no matter how small their roles. And so—although Glenda Farrell, Alan Dinehart and Lyle Talbot are in that play—his listing now reads: "Separate Rooms—E. Craig" . . . Miss Craig saw it, and said: "That's a nice Christmas present, that billing—but why didn't you go all the way, and spell out my first name, instead of just 'E.'?" . . . The broker shrugged, and pointed to his listing of "The Corn Is Green"—which was followed by the name of the star, "E. Barrymore."

ETHEL BARRYMORE

REVENGE: Oscar Ewing, who was the Eastern manager of President Roosevelt's campaign, is the law partner of Charles Evans Hughes, Jr. Ewing tried a case for one of the firm's clients, the Aluminum Co. of America, and won the suit. After the trial, he told Arthur Davis, head of the company: "I worked my way through college in Indiana, and through law school by selling your aluminum from house to house. That left its mark on me—for my right shoulder is lower than my left, because of the aluminum wares I carried. I promised that some day I'd get my revenge, and make you pay for that. Well, the time's come"—and Ewing presented his bill.

REVOLT: The Group Theater, ever the exponents of the proletariat, recently inaugurated an eight-hour day for all its employes—a ruling which applied even to rehearsals . . . During the rehearsals of Irwin Shaw's "Retreat to Pleasure," director Harold Clurman kept the cast rehearsing for a long period. Hume Cronyn, whose family is one of Canada's richest, and who, in addition, owns part of "Life With Father," joined John Emery in protesting: "Harold, you're violating the eight-hour rule" . . . Clurman glared at the duo, and told them: "You-you radicals."

DRINK: Nunnally Johnson sat with a group of his friends in a Hollywood restaurant, and reminded them of the fact that he was drinking very little . . . "And a good thing, too," Mrs. Johnson assured him, "because, frankly, Nunnally, you don't know how to drink" . . . "I know how, all right," Johnson confessed. "It's just that I don't believe in following my hunches."

MEETING: Dr. Ernest Hooton, the Harvard anthropologist who wrote "Twilight of Man," was introduced to Herbert Marshall, the screen star . . . After their talk, Dr. Hooton was asked what he thought of Marshall. "Mr. Herbert Marshall," he replied, "is an actor who can act the part of the gentleman, when he doesn't have to act."

* * *

ARREST: Wednesday night's dispatches from Vichy reported the arrest of Lucienne Boyer, on a charge of evading food-supply restrictions, because her hairdresser had smuggled food to her . . . Two weeks ago Miss Boyer's theatrical representatives negotiated for an engagement at the Versailles, on East 50th st.—the night club where she sang for many weeks, during her last appearance in this country. The Versailles was willing to engage her again now, but the deal fell through because of Miss Boyer's terms—which included an eight week guarantee, and transportation for three.

SNOBBERY: The story is being told of an American who went to a London bar, and was introduced to a young officer who was described as the Ace of the RAF—for having downed 64 enemy planes . . . "It must make you very proud," complimented the American, "to realize that you've destroyed more enemy planes than any of the others" . . . "Oh, I wouldn't say that,' the officer told him. "The captain over there—he's accounted for 81 planes, which beats my record by 17" . . . "Really?" asked the American. "Then why don't they call him the Ace of the RAF?" . . . "Because he's a snob," was the reply. "He refuses to count any Fascist planes."

EXCLUSIVE: I [illegible] able to wish a Happy New Year to G[illegible] Bob Quinn of the Boston Bees . . . The deal is [illegible] to being closed (if it isn't already) . . . The veteran of nearly two decades of major league baseball [illegible] on will, at last, enjoy the freedom of operation he really never has had in the past . . . The majority [illegible] will be in Bob's own name, and son John will hold some more

CROTCHETY AT TIMES, but beloved and respected by baseball writers and the players, Bob's recent peeve was due to negotiations being carried on with the Powell man without Mr. Quinn being a principal . . . Charles F. Adams, real owner of the Bees, has been urged by his physicians to slacken his pace, in order to favor his health . . . V. C. Bruce Wetmore, a major partner in several Adams' enterprises, is also in the hands of the medicos, and confined to his home

BOB QUINN, OLDER THAN both of these gentlemen but enjoying fine health, is fully able to operate the National League franchise . . . It was pointed out to Mr. Adams that the venerable Mr. Quinn had worked wonders in acquiring valuable players for the Bees, and that, given full powers, he would be a better bet to retrieve some of the money sunk in the club.

WE ARE NOT ACQUAINTED with the particulars of the deal, but the report is that Mr. Adams has arranged with Robert to take over the Bees on an installment plan basis, paying out of the profits (if any).

PROFITS THERE SHOULD BE, it was suggested to Mr. Adams, if the Bees are lucky enough to have their young stars escape the draft . . . Casey Stengel and Bob Quinn have been a harmonious pair—always—and the club's morale may be expected to improve with final decisions resting exclusively in Mr. Quinn's custody.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The New England horse racing picture is very dauber at present . . . The situation may even result in a "racing war" . . . Narragansett wants dates which would slice the Rockingham Park summer meeting to only three weeks, two and a half in July, and three days in August . . . Lou Smith is prepared to fight

BUT IT MAY BE STRAIGHTENED out . . . The Gansett dates have not been awarded yet, and Governor-elect J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island has not yet nominated the Rhode Island racing commissioner . . . The Vanderbilt appointee, Commissioner Gerry, decided not to issue the 1941 permit for Gansett's two meetings.

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN a "lame duck" award, and not calculated to endear the new governor of Little Rhody to the Gansett management . . . (Or so the boys figured . . .) Judge Donley, president of Narragansett, is a Republican and was a staunch Vanderbilt supporter . . . Hints Jim Connors, chairman of the board, and a Massachusetts Democrat, will be the emissary to the R. I. State House.

GOVERNOR-ELECT McGRATH, who recalls vividly the O'Hara-Governor Quinn struggle which broke both men, will not welcome any semblance of a "racing war," his friends say . . . In 1937, battle lines were drawn for such an interstate war, but an adjustment of dates which saw Rockingham very well treated, resulted.

THE COMPLICATION in the situation is Suffolk Downs' 60-day meeting, which runs continuously from mid-May to mid-July each year . . . Suffolk has never

CAROL DENNISON

Cocoanut Grove's Star Held Over

budged from its intention to maintain these choice dates, and under the Saltonstall administration, the East Boston track is known to have no cause for worry.

HAD PAUL DEVER BEEN elected—there undoubtedly would have been a blow off . . . Mr. Dever, by the way, is entertaining Democratic members of the legislature at a party set for Jan. 1 at the Fox and Hounds Club . . . Lovely Carol Dennison, who is singing and dancing at Cocoanut Grove, has been held over until after New Years.

LITVAK TO DIRECT "GENTLE PEOPLE"

By Louella O. Parsons

Anatole Litvak

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28—Anatole Litvak is back on the Warner lot getting ready to direct "Gentle People," the Erwin Shaw play. Both Litvak and Henry Blanke, the able producer, will have their work cut out in making this somewhat censorable play acceptable screen material. The hero is a gangster and not the suave kind that Jimmie Cagney made popular but a baddie without a redeeming feature. Franchot Tone played the character on the stage and Sylvia Sidney the girl.

The gangster, the girl and two old men are the principal characters. Humphrey Bogart, 'tis said, will have the Tone role and that's a good idea for Humphrey can play these meanies with real finesse. Warners too are planning to do something for him this coming year.

MARTHA SCOTT

ROBERT YOUNG and James Stewart are in the Army now! No, don't get excited, for the duo will do their potato peeling in a movie of camp life. Judging from the plot, which an ex-MGM writer gave me, it promises to be the funniest conscription picture to date. When we tell you Frank Morgan plays the commander of the camp who cannot suppress his desires to produce shows at the post, the fat will know there is comedy galore. Plenty of pulchritude to back up the comedy, for MGM has sent a delegate down to Fort MacArthur to get local color.

MARTHA SCOTT is one of the contenders for the Academy Award this year, because of her work in "Our Town" and "Howards of Virginia." If we were awarding a plum to the newcomer who has made the greatest strides in the last year, I think you'll agree that Martha would win. I am sure you're interested in her next picture—"They Dare Not Love" with George Brent to be directed by James Whale. I know I told you that Joan Bennett was to have the lead. Well, Joan must do "A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street" and since Columbia has made all plans to start the two pictures simultaneously, they could not wait for Joan.

THE PASSING of that grand old man, Daniel Frohman, famous theatrical producer, recalls to mind the times I was his dinner guest with Fanny Hurst at his apartment atop the Lyceum Theater in New York. He had one of the finest collections of theatrical portraits in existence. They must be very valuable now. Among his treasures was the cartoon that John Barrymore in his youth had drawn. Uncle Dan, as all his friends called him, used to say that cartoon was valuable because it wasn't until John had drawn that and been fired from the newspaper that he became the great actor that he is today.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The new tenant in the house formerly occupied by Jean Arthur and Frank Ross is Garbo, no less. Seems to me Greta is always moving; Marcelite Boles, the red-headed daughter of the John Boles, is recovering after St. Vincent's following an appendectomy. Jane Powell plows in today to attend the races at Santa Anita. Brian Aherne certainly plays the game safe. He gave four identical wrist watches to four of his gal friends for Christmas; Dick Powell opens New Year's Eve at the Golden Gate Theater in San Francisco. Dick will bring the paying customers in.

THE BEAUTIFUL topaz ring Alice Faye is wearing was given her by Tony Martin for Christmas. No, it is no reconciliation, just a gesture of friendship; John Barrymore and Vivian Duncan sitting in the crossroads of the world for hours renewing old friendship; the Earl Carroll show, in the opinion of many, is the most lavish of those staged by the enterprising Carroll. Jimmie Durante got a big hand and so did Beryl Wallace, Carroll's heart-throb, who, they appeared on the stage; sitting in a ringside seat were Benita Granville and Jackie Cooper; Hollywood nightclubbers were very busy for the Victor Hugo opened the same night and Ben Bernie has many friends who were there to welcome him; Dolores Del Rio has turned down the New York play, "Hi-Ya Gentlemen," starring Jack Haley, on account she chooses to remain near Orson Welles.

Wired for Action!

THROUGH the casement window, Nancy saw a strange man stepping from a sleek roadster. Her heart quickened. But it wasn't love at first sight at all. Nancy Trener sold homes.

The Cast of Characters in "Jim Buys a Home"

NANCY, who sells real estate—any kind of homes—and lives in a hotel.

A PROSPECT, who looks at a home Nancy detests—and then looks at Nancy.

Jim Buys a Home

By Isabel Johnston

She made commissions by selling home life. Even her office was a home, a Cape Cod cottage, designed by Skidmore and Co., landscaped—from the triangle of velvety turf to the frequently replanted rambling roses over the doorway—by Hodges' Nurseries, interior decoration and furniture by Slawson. No dishes were ever washed there. No beds were ever unmade. It was a model home open for inspection at the entrance to the Shoreview Development. In it, Nancy always wore a hat, tilted artfully over tawny curls.

There, Sunday after Sunday—and weekdays [illegible] Nancy disarmed home hunters. Under curling lashes her guileless, big gray eyes entranced prospects into buying the higher priced houses. Her wide mouth was so smiling, her frocks so feminine and decorative.

In Nancy Trener's vocabulary, a lonely cottage was a delightful retreat, an inaccessible bird perched on a hill, a home with a magnificent outlook. In Nancy Trener's soft speech, a barn of a place was an inspiration—with such marvelous possibilities for remodeling!

Her sales talk could transform dark rooms into bright, charming ones, with visions of yellow drapes and flowered cretonne on deep, inviting chairs. When she showed a prospect a kitchen, the victim heard ice cubes tinkling in tall glasses and smelled chicken frying in deep fat on the stove.

At first she had longed to wash dishes and can fruit and hem her own ideas into curtains for each house that she showed. Now her smile seemed to turn on with a button. She sold homes until the glow of enthusiasm in her gray eyes became a glaze. At the end of a real estate Sunday she was glad she had long lashes behind which her weariness of home could hide.

She sold homes. Her ambition was to live in a hotel.

Automatically she took her place in the doorway and turned on charm to create in the prospect an illusion of the delights of home coming. From habit she appraised the young man as he came up the path. His walk was brisk, his handsome expansive his face open.

No wife was with him to point out housing defects. Stockily built, blue eyed, lean waisted, he had the smiling good looks of a man with a sunny temper and splendid digestion. The type who becomes easily a salesman's friend. A [illegible] deferential bellboy seemed to be at her elbow, waiting for her to register.

Nancy beamed with real feeling. It wasn't in welcome. She was thinking that if a hotel lobby you didn't need to be cordial.

"The name's Jim Duane. I'm looking for a house!" His tones seemed to say that house hunting was a holiday. His companionable grin expected Nancy to enjoy it too.

Fat commission or not, it was more than she could bear!

"I'm not sure we have what you want." Nancy found herself coolly and perversely departing from recognized real estate practices. She flipped through her cards in an effort to get back into form, asking, "Price? Size?"

"The perfect home for a bachelor," he announced and added airily, "Say about $10,000."

Nancy hated him. Here was a man with plenty of money and he didnt know enough to live in a hotel.

"You'll get tired of commuting."

"Oh, I'll drive to work by car," he smiled engagingly. "Surely you know the perfect spot, the woods, the privacy, the view, the ideal location for a bachelor."

NANCY REBELS

Here was her chance to unload that bluff property that never seemed to move! Reluctantly she rose, telling herself this would be her last real estate lie, her last prospect if she had to work as a hotel chambermaid. She had to force herself to accompany him in his roadster and direct him to the house on the bluff. Her tongue refused to produce the bright chatter that would divert his attention from the bumpy road.

She was obstinately silent, but it didn't seem to dampen Jim Duane's enjoyment. The fine old trees along the road filled him with enthusiasm. He exclaimed over the glimpse of the sea. In fact, he might have been trying to sell the Shoreview Development and the house on the bluff to her.

Jim Duane was the unfulfilled dream of every real estate salesman—the perfect optimist. A few words would turn him into the fat commission, the $250 that would lift Nancy by elevator into a well serviced hotel room.

But those last few real estate lies gagged in her throat. Her tongue rebelling, pointed out that the road was rough and steep, extremely muddy in winter. As for the lovely inlet from the sea, at low tide it smelled of mussels—and she told him so.

The house on the bluff was just the home a bachelor would like if he didn't look into it carefully. All she had to do was to murmur about woods and privacy. All she had to do was to fling open the door into the huge living-room with its big fireplace—and a vacation in luxury would be hers. But he took the sales talk out of her mouth before she had time to utter it.

"So private," he enthused. "You could have a stag party and nobody would knock on the pipes."

"Mrs. Mullins lives right behind that hedge," Nancy undeceived him. "She's motherly. She'd come over and lecture you on staying up too late at night for your own good."

"And bring a home-made pie with her lecture," he chuckled.

"Maybe. But Mrs. Tucker lives on the other side and she borrows."

"Good," he rejoiced. "Then I can borrow, too."

Inside the house, Nancy pointed out defects just as if she were a wife. The fireplace drew perfectly—as long as no east wind blew. The refrigerator was big and made plenty of ice cubes, but electricity in the country was expensive. The heating was automatic—except when a storm blew down the wires and the steam pipes and house-owner froze.

"And in the summer there are gnats and blue bottle flies from the beach," Nancy went on relentlessly.

"My pipe will take care of them."

Somehow his undampened enthusiasm prodded Nancy into disclosing all the truths a real estate agent never tells—the discomforts of life in the country—the problem of keeping servants—the difficulty of keeping warm—or cool—or dusted, in a studio living-room. As if possessed she talked away her chances for a hotel vacation in a magnificent orgy of release.

Their bumpy ride to her office was very silent. Nancy felt his eyes upon her once or twice, but she was stricken with self horror, hardly able to believe what she had done. Why if she had merely kept quiet, he would have closed the deal himself! To her surprise he got out of his car and followed her into the office, just as if he were going to put a deposit down. Dazed by this miracle, she reached for her account book automatically.

JIM CONFESSES

"You've been so honest with me," he smiled boyishly, "I feel I should be honest with you."

His hands flipped through her cards as if he were embarrassed.

"To tell you the truth, I was only looking. I hadnt the slightest intention of buying."

She rose up. Half her mind grasped for some plan to retract the truths she had told him. The other half surged with accumulated hatred for the real estate agent's enemy—the prospect. She whipped off her hat as a man takes off his coat for a fist fight—and seared him with the withering, devastating truth about prospects—particularly prospects who didn't intend to buy.

"You . . . you cheated me out of my commission!" she gasped out her last accusation before she slumped down, her head buried in her arms, no longer a real estate agent but a woman to tired to cry.

A tentative hand patted her shoulder.

"I'm a real estate agent myself," he sympathized.

Her head flared up.

Quickly, urgently, he explained.

"I sold so many houses, I went stale. Thought being a prospect would give a new angle—and it has. From now on I'm going to tell the truth."

"Yes, tell the truth about homes," she was scathing, "and live in a hotel"

"Why, no. You sold me completely. I'm buying a home. That is . . ." He grinned disarmingly—in his eyes, the appealing, helpless look of a male who needs some one to hem drapes and help him select furniture—but, like a good salesman, he knew when to stop talking and let time and the prospect close the sale.

Macauley Sees 1941 Banner Motor Year In Defense Output

By ALVAN MACAULEY

President, Automobile Manufacturers Association; Chairman of the Board, Packard Motor Car Company

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 28 Closing a year of accelerated demand and consequent high productivity, the automobile industry looks ahead to an even greater record through 1941.

In the calendar year just ended manufacturers of cars and trucks produced 4,476,000 vehicles, according to preliminary estimates just completed.

In looking ahead, the usual forecasts of vehicle production must yield to the requirements of the defense program. It is hoped output will meet public demand, but this will be entirely a matter of the extent to which automotive facilities are needed and can be used on military work.

Factory sales during 1940 included 3,705,000 passenger cars and 771,000 trucks, both substantially higher than the 1939 totals. These estimates cover production in United States plants only and represent a wholesale value of $2,414,000,000 for passenger cars and $594,000,000 for trucks, or a total wholesale value of $3,008,000,000.

413,000 EMPLOYED

Employment in automobile, body and parts factories covered 413,000 people in 1940 and the weekly payroll in these plants increased to an average of $15,500,000.

Meanwhile the number of cars and trucks registered in the United States rose to a new high of 34,950,000, which accompanied a further increase in the use of motor vehicles, more than half of which is now serving the necessity purposes of daily life, such as going to work, market, school and the like.

It is the performance of such service that characterizes the highway transport system as one of the basic pillars of a strong, domestic economy, maintenance and improvement of which is second only to actual production of munitions of war in its importance to a powerful national defense.

NEED TO CONTINUE

The growth of motor manufacturing has been made possible through the continued improvement in values offered a nation in ever increasing need for efficient economic, personal transportation.

This need will continue to grow according to the best informed experts on the subject.

Public Roads Administrator Thomas H. MacDonald, after three years spent in exhaustive highway research in co-operation with state officials, reported to Congress that highway use would double over the next 20 years.

This means a demand on the part of the public for more and still better cars—a demand the industry will continue to meet to the fullest extent possible.

But at present the public has another need to be met. It wants from all kinds of industry a huge supply of fighting tools to make our Army and Navy impregnable against any attack. The automobile industry is being called upon to supply many types of equipment.

There is a hurry-up order, and the industry is giving it number one effort.

COMPLICATED JOB

The job is vast and complicated. Some items of equipment sought by the military services is quite similar to that normally produced for civilian use.

Scout cars, military trucks—the items that give modern striking power to armies are pouring out by the thousands. Some items are brand new to the automobile industry tanks, machine guns, airplane engines and parts.

These in the main mean new plants new types of machinery, readaptation to new products of the mass production techniques which make rapid output possible.

All this takes time. Scout cars can roll out fast, because the members of this industry have had 40 years' experience in producing motor vehicles, although at that it should be recalled that when models are to be changed it still takes many months of designing, planning replacement of machinery, etc., before the new can roll off the assembly line one-a-minute as did its predecessor.

IN FULL SWING

However, this unavoidable preliminary work on military assignments is already in full swing and in the months ahead an increasing amount of defense production will be turned out by the industry, in addition to which every reasonable effort will be made to continue meeting civilian demand for regular products.

KIDDIES GET BREAK IN CLIMATIZED CARS

"Papa buys the car, mamma enjoys it, too, but it's the kiddies who get the real breaks," observed Harry Liggett, Studebaker distributor, yesterday as he watched the afternoon parade of mothers and their off-springs drive by on their way to stores and social calls.

Mr. Liggett recalls vividly when it had to be a very fine day in deed before junior or sister or the baby was allowed to brave a journey in the family car. Then bundling and watching and worrying were constant companions on even the shortest rides.

In commenting on the modern comforts that make motoring a thoroughly enjoyable and safe experience for children both in winter and summer, Liggett mentioned the great advancements that have been made in heating the automobile.

"Studebaker, for example, employs a centrally located fresh air ventilating and heating system known as a Climatizer," Mr. Liggett explained.

This unit, located under the front seat, and built into the car at the factory, circulates fresh, filtered, thoroughly warmed air to every part of the car interior.

This saves layers of bundling for the children and helps prevent colds as the temperature everywhere in the car's interior is evenly regulated. Heads and hands don't freeze while feet roast and there is no stale air or stuffiness.

Still another item that relieves mother of worry when the children are in the car, is the non-slam rotary door latch which is standard equipment on all new 1941 Studebakers.

Nash Dealers Get Glimpse of Plant Methods

High-lighting Nash Motors' first national conference of its distributors and field organization since the introduction of the new Ambassador 600 last fall was a dramatic car-to-car demonstration of the new Nash with four other low-priced cars. Fred C. Sibley, Branch Motors of Nash Motors of New England, reports.

The three-day meeting was divided between a big Chicago hotel and the Kenosha, Wis., plant. The program was devoted primarily to discussion on merchandising, advertising and general sales activities during the winter months.

W. A. Blees, general sales manager, was chairman of an open forum meeting at which it was decided to conduct a strong selling campaign in January and February.

Much of the activity during the drive is geared to keep pace with rapidly increasing demand for the new models designed to take particular advantage of Nash's "Weather Eye," which provides Nash salesmen with unusually good demonstration opportunities in cold weather.

At Kenosha, distributors watched the "600" production running at a rate of one a minute. Numerous dealer meetings are scheduled for the next few weeks.

fish, followed by entree and then by roast. Today, under ministry of food orders, you can be served only one such dish, whether fish or meat.

The abbreviated entree list of these days is notable for its avoidance of scarce and rationed foods and its use of left-overs. The Vienna steak is a pat of ground meat from yesterday's roast. It is cooked like a hamburger steak but is more like a croquette in the eating.

The toad-in-the-hole is a braised lamb chop without bone pressed into a mount of mashed potatoes and splashed with gravy. Sometimes this has an underlayer of pastry.

Sausage are not rationed. They are of limited meat content, but savory and fat and you get two broiled ones with your potatoes. Egg dishes have disappeared from the entree list.

CHOICE OF SEVERAL

Time was when you had several roasts to choose. Roast lamb with mint sauce, roast mutton with jelly and roast beef with Yorkshire pudding were always present. Now you have no choice, but nearly always you find one roast offered.

The omission of grilled meats shows how wary the restaurant is of pledging its kitchen burners. Frequently, however, a mixed grill or rump steak is on the list.

The vegetable assortment has shrunk from six or eight to two. One is always potatoes and the other some kind of greens like cabbage, Brussels sprouts or spinach.

The list of hot desserts has been cut in half, but one can choose one of the standard cold dishes, like wine gelatine or fruit trifle (sponge cake plus a cornstarch custard plus gelatine with bits of fruit.) But there will be no cream to pour over it now.

The English often choose a savory rather than a sweet for the end of a meal and the present list of savories is the standard one. It will probably endure while cheese, canned herring roe and canned sardines are available.

APPLE OR PEAR

And it is always possible to call for cheese and biscuits (providing you'll take Cheddar or Cheshire cheese) or to have an apple or pear. The once-available French, Dutch, Swiss and Italian cheeses are gone. So are the tropical fruits.

The offering of only one hot beverage is another indication of the uncertain gas situation. Sometimes we have to take coffee with milk in it whether we want it black or not because that is the way it has been prepared. Usually a glass of milk is available, however.

With our lunch we take a roll or wedge of bread from the basket on the table and, perhaps, ask for butter, getting a thin pat the size of a quarter. It may be butter or it may be margarine.

There is no sugar on the table. One tiny cube three-eighths of an inch square comes with the coffee. If you do not use sugar, you present your cube to the man who does.

The cost of the average "business man's lunch" on this basis (you can figure it yourself) will be about 80 cents. The quality is about that of a 50-cent lunch in America at a place halfway between the lunch counter cafe and middle class table service place.

COUNTER CHEAPER

You can eat cheaper at counters. A quarter will buy a cup of soup, a glass of milk and a sandwich. You can also spend $2 at a deluxe place and eat much more, but you'll still be held to one meat or fish dish, fare little better on butter and sugar and still miss things like cream.

THE NEW BOXING Commission, composed of Sam Smith, Dez Wadsworth and Eugene McSweeney, has ruled that in the future all boxing gloves must be delivered at the office of the commission on the day before a match.

"The Commission will take charge of all gloves used in boxing matches," said Sam Smith. "The gloves must be turned over to the Commission the day before a bout.

"The Commission will also check on boxers who are to take part in a show. There will be visits to the gyms during the training periods, and also physical checkups. We are going to do everything possible to see that boxing is conducted on a high plane in this State."

Dez Wadsworth, famous as director of the annual B. A. A. Marathon, has already started work to regulate the crowds at boxing shows.

"I would like to see the ringside sections as well as the galleries orderly during boxing bouts," said Wadsworth. "We shall insist that the fans receive the seats called for by their tickets, and that people be stopped from rushing to the ringside during the progress of bouts."

Wadsforth, like Smith, has a background rich in athletic experience, and will introduce many healthy reforms into boxing.

Eugene McSweeney as head of the Department of Public Safety will sit in at hearings with Smith and Wadsworth, and he is certain to give his full co-operation.

"I would like to make such a good showing as a Boxing Commissioner," said Smith, "that when my term runs out the public will want me to remain on the ring board. I was pleased by the hundreds of congratulatory telegrams I received at the time of my appointment. I also got many telephone calls from people I have met during my years in sports."

The Commission will have regular office hours, and it plans to do what it can to restore interest in boxing.

EARL DEW is hurrying to Caliente, Mexico, to ride 10 horses tomorrow in an effort to beat out Walter Taylor in the battle for the national jockey championship. Before the opening of today's racing at Tropical Park, Dew and Taylor were tied with 283 winners each.

If Dew had remained in Florida, there is little question but that Taylor would have beaten him. Taylor had the better connections among the horsemen and so was getting mounts superior to those of Dew. It is also the opinion of many keen judges of racing that Taylor is a more finished rider than Dew.

Dew has scored most of his victories on Coast tracks, and so it was natural that he should turn to Caliente in an effort to hold off the rush of Taylor.

Caliente is a distinctive race track. I quote from the Dec. 22

EUGENE McSWEENEY SAM SMITH DEZ WADSWORTH

issue of Caliente published in Mexico and devoted to horses and sports. The matter referred to is as follows:

"Features . . . Things at Caliente you won't find elsewhere. Foreign book . . . combinations . . . daily double (what about New England and even Florida?); quiniela . . . open ring . . . 4th betting . . . prize contest."

The quiniela is on the last race . . . The Caliente paper describes this feature as follows:

"Play the quiniela in the last race . . . In this popular form of wagering you merely select two horses (as if it isn't hard enough to pick one) you think will be first across the finish line . . . It doesn't matter which runs first and second . . . Big prizes are usually paid on winning quiniela tickets . . . For a thrill play the quiniela."

BY THE FOREIGN book one may bet on a race at any track in the United States while passing an afternoon at Caliente . . . The foreign book operates under the grandstand, and you can take a line price or wait for the final payoff odds.

The daily double at Caliente operates on the second and third races, and the cost of a ticket is $2 as in New England.

They often have as many as 14 races on a Sunday at Caliente. Which gives Old Jawn Public plenty of opportunities to make wrong guesses.

Dew is going to this betting paradise in an effort to clinch the national jockey championship. He figures that he should be able to come up with three or four winners on Sunday. Dew's agents have plenty of strength on the Coast, and they expect to have the best available horses for Earl.

Meanwhile Taylor will remain at Tropical Park where he will be opposed by the best riders in the country. With a fair break in mounts, he is confident he will beat out Dew.

Jamaica Tops E. Boston, Trade Ties Memorial

BOSTON GARDEN, Dec. 28—Dorchester High's flying sextet zoomed to the top rung of the Boston Schoolboy Conference on the wings of an impressive 3-0 conquest of Commerce this morning at the Garden.

In other games on the weekly card of four, Roslindale defeated Charlestown, 4-0; Jamaica Plain edged East Boston, 1-0, and Trade and Memorial waltzed to a 1-1 draw.

After an even-stephen first period, Dorchester, one of the conference's bright lights this semester, warmed up in the second canto and before the Commerce kids were aware of the fact, the Red and Black was out front, three goals to the good.

Ed Zettino passed to Harry Holt in the second minute of the productive second chapter and when Harry made good on the conversion, Dorchester assumed a lead which it held to the end.

MAGULLION ON TOP

A minute later Frank Magullion shot Dorchester's lead to two goals and before the period ended Johnny Connolly had chalked the third and final score of the game. Commerce was finished on the spot and Dorchester coasted home a whitewash winner.

Roslindale looked impressive in chalking up its initial victory—against one tie and a lone defeat—of the current season. Charlestown, playing its first game of the campaign, was outclassed from the start.

Ed Colby, high scorer for the day with a pair of goals, punched Roslindale into its initial lead in the very first minute of the opening period. Charlestown battled gamely during the rest of the chapter but in the next canto a flood of Roslindale rubber broke up the game.

Kev Finneran, who had assisted Colby in the first period and Don Guisiker and Colby, (again), each tallied a goal and Charlestown gave up the ghost.

From the beginning to end the Jamaica-East Boston clash was a closely contested affair. Each team fought desperately for an opening break but the final period was half over before Jamaica pushed across the winning-goal of the game. Bill Conley did the honors after taking Julie Zelinski's passout from behind the Eastie cage.

HOVEY SAVES TRADE

Al Garte scored Memorial's only counter in the opening round of his team's contest with Trade. For two periods the tally looked like a winning margin but in the fifth minute of the final chapter Jack Hovey assisted by Bill Borneman, slapped a score and Trade had eased itself into a tie ball game.

"AND DON'T COME BACK." Goaler Matthews, Roxbury Memorial, shies puck away from net in today's Garden game with Trade School, and warns it to keep away from his door thereafter. But puck didn't listen and finally crawled in for 1-all tie.

Solons' Pow-Wow Cause Governor To Miss Classic

DENVER, Dec. 28 (AP)—If you are disappointed because you were unable to get tickets for the Rose Bowl football game think of Governor Ralph L. Carr who had six and can't use them.

Giving the tickets to friends, the governor explained the State legislators would meet on Jan. 1 and he must be here so that, by custom, they can tell him they are in session.

MANZO NAMED BOWL CO-CAPTAIN

MERRY X MAS TO ALL

By BILL GRIMES

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Dec. 28—Just before the Boston College squad climbed into their buses for St. Stanislaus Academy to dress for morning practice, Head Coach Frank Leahy made the announcement that Joe "Blackie" Manzo, the former Medford high and St. John's prep all-around athlete who has been the regular left tackle for the Eagles for three seasons, would be one of the co-captains in the Sugar Bowl classic against Tennessee on New Year's day.

Co-captain Manzo's chances of piloting a winning club, incidentally, brightened considerably when Gene Goodreault, the great right end of the Eagles, swept through a half-hour scrimmage in blazing fashion without once being bothered by his bad knee.

LEAHY LAUDS MANZO

Goodreault is now certain of starting the Sugar Bowl game and looks capable of playing its entirety.

Speaking of Manzo's selection as one of the captains in the all-important contest, Coach Leahy said:

"During the two years I've been at Boston College Joe Manzo has been a most valuable asset to B. C. He was a regular tackle his sophomore year. They told me that he would have started every game the first year. He was eligible for varsity competition but for injuries which sidelined him for three contests.

"Manzo has been a tireless worker for the past two seasons. And, he must have given everything he had his first year on the varsity squad to be awarded a regular berth. He is one of the best tackles I've ever seen in action but I'm firmly convinced that he has never received full credit for his efficient play.

The so-called experts, who select All-America elevens have never given Manzo much of a tumble, which is just another indication that they bit off more than they could chew when they undertook such an important assignment.

DIDN'T LIKE FOOTBALL

However, coaches who have sent teams against Boston College for the past two seasons rate Manzo as the best lineman on the Eagles' roster. They know tackle play better than any expert and they do not go out on a limb when selecting the outstanding players unless they are fully convinced that their selections have passed muster.

Although he was at Medford high for four years and then at St. John's prep for two more, Manzo didn't play much football until he went to Boston College.

To be perfectly truthful, Joe Manzo didn't like football until he matriculated at University Heights.

At Medford high he devoted more time to basketball and baseball than he did to the gridiron game. And the same was true at St. John's prep.

During his prep school days Joe was a star basketball player and a winning pitcher. He wanted to make baseball his career and realizing the gamble it is to mix football with the national pastime, he didn't enthuse over football.

In those days he was just a gangling kid and could not get any kick out of being batted around on a football field, a

DRUMMER BOY—Big Chet Gladchuk, Boston College All-America center, plays a pretty good tune on the drumstick, as photo proves. Chet will play a similar symphony in Sugar Bowl game Wednesday when Eagles face Tennessee.

CHI BEARS PRO BOWL FAVORITES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28 (AP)—The world champion Chicago Bears remain firm favorites to continue their devastating ways tomorrow when they battle the National League All-Stars in the climax of the professional football wars out here—the third annual pro-bowl game at Gilmore Stadium.

Four reasons why the big Bear machine wrecked the Washington Redskins for the championship three weeks ago—quarterback Sid Luckman, Halfbacks Ray Nolting and Gary Famiglietti and Full back Bill Osmanski—were named today to go in at the opening kickoff.

Ray Flaherty, coach of the All-Stars and losing mentor of the Redskins, picked Slingin' Sammy Baugh, Pug Manders, Merlyn Condit and Ramming Johnny Drake for his opening quartette of backfield aces.

Nebraskans Prepared For Bowl 'T' Party

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 28 (AP)—Nebraska's football Cornhuskers, drilled so exhaustively on Stanford's famed "T" formation they could use it themselves, wind up an eight-day training stay for their Rose Bowl appearance in Arizona tonight.

An afternoon workout was on today's schedule before the Nebraskans entrain at 9:05 p. m. for Los Angeles.

All this week Maj. Lawrence (Biff) Jones, Nebraska head coach, has worked his players on the tricky attack.

Some members of the Nebraska party speculated as to whether Jones was planning to throw the "T" formation right back at Stanford.

Using opponents' plays against them is a favorite trick of Jones', observers recalled.

He employed Minnesota plays, picked up by scouts, against the Gophers this year and later used Pittsburgh tactics against the Panthers.

Influenza hit the Nebraska squad last night for the second time. Halfback Herman Rohrig was ordered to bed with a mild case, but was expected to be ready for action in a day or two.

Harry Hopp, also a halfback, suffered an attack Tuesday, but is back in harness.

Two players have minor injuries. Allen Zikmund, a back, hurt his shoulder during blocking practice, and Quarterback Roy Petsch has a sore side.

Amerks End Bruin Jinx

Boston's series of one-sided triumphs over the New York Americans was at an end today as the Americans boasted a 3 to 3 overtime tie with the fast skating Bruins.

Hooley Smith deadlocked the contest at Madison Square Garden in the third period with his first goal of the season to the thunder of applause of the 10,594 spectators.

After the Americans had assumed a 2 to 0 lead in the opening period, the Bruins came back with three tallies in the second on scores by Clapper, Dumart and Bauer. But the Boston lead vanished in the closing minutes of the third period on Smith's marker. No other games were scheduled.

Stanford Stresses Aerial Offense in Practice

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 28 (AP) Stanford's football squad headed into another lively workout today for the clash with Nebraska in the Rose Bowl, and once again Coach Clark Shaughnessy intimated he would stress his aerial offense.

Aerial drills have dominated the Standford preparations since they reached Pasadena, with Southpaw Frankie Albert, the Indians' All-America quarterback, and Thor Peterson doing the tossing.

Stanford boasts several splendid pass receivers, but Fred Meyer, right end; Clem Tomerlin, spindley-legged reserve wingman, and Hugh Gallarneau, halfback star, stand out in this department. Meyer is generally rated the best.

Milt Vucinich, second string fullback, continued to avoid drills because of his injured knee, and the belief is growing that he will not see action at all New Year's Day. Rod Parker, a senior, weighing 188 pounds, may replace Norm (Big Chief) Standlee, if his trick ankle gives way in the game. Parker is a hard line-plunger, but has seen little service this fall.

The Stanfords will rest tomorrow, taking a busman's holiday by attending the professional football game in Los Angeles between the Chicago Bears and the National League All-Stars.

Nebraska arrives Sunday morning, and a delegation of Tournament or Roses officials, flanked by scores of Nebraska enthusiasts will greet the Huskers.

No rain is predicted for the New Year's game.

Wilhelm Tops Coast Trainers

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 28—The race for honors among the trainers at the Bay Meadows meeting was definitely a close one, but final figures showed that C. Wilhelm nosed out A. G. Tarn by the scant margin of one winning horse.

sent to the penalty box in this league.

SECOND PERIOD

Two minutes after the period began, Goalie McKenna returned to his post, but with his Newton mates doing most of the forcing Bill had little or no work to do during the canto. Phil Fessenden was the big gun of the period. Phil pounded home scores at 4:20 and 8:20. Johnnie Corcoran assisted on the first, Joe Beatty aided on the second.

Score—Newton 2 Stoneham 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Stoneham battled gamely to get back into the ball game and in the 11th minute of play managed to come within one goal of tieing the score but in the final analysis Newton's lead proved too great to overcome. Landers, assisted by Allen, posted the Stoneham tally.

MELROSE-BELMONT

FIRST PERIOD

League leading Melrose lost no time in asserting itself. Before the first minute of the opening round had ticked off, Charlie Bolton belted home Charlie Holt's rebound and Melrose was one goal to the good. Less than five minutes later Ed Cahoon upped the Melrose advantage when he poked home the puck after it had dropped off Goaler Bill McBride's stick.

Score: Melrose 2, Belmont 0

SECOND PERIOD

Tommy Dockrell punched an unassisted counter in the first minute of the period and Melrose owned a three-goal lead. With Belmont's Dick Harding in the penalty box, Melrose increased its lead when Cahoon popped his second goal of the afternoon in the 11th minute of play.

Score—Melrose 4, Belmont 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Holt, Lou Spadofora, Bruce Gardner and Bolton added goals to the Melrose total in this canto and when Goaler Sophomore Wendall Holmes handled the few chances that came his way the league leaders were able to post a most impressive 8-0 conquest.

Final score—Melrose 8, Belmont 0.

BARROW PREDICTS 1941 PENNANT FOR YANKEES

BOSTON BOY huddles with nobility. Fred Corcoran of Boston, tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' Association, is shown planning a benefit golf match with His Royal Highness, the Duke of Windsor, right, at Nassau in the Bahamas. Leading players of this country have been invited to compete in the match to be played during March for the benefit of the Red Cross. (International News Service Photo)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (INS)—The New York Yankees — a team which mysteriously fell apart last season after four championship seasons—are going to stage a grand comeback and win the 1941 American League pennant.

That, at least, is what Ed Barrow, president of the Yanks, predicts today.

Barrow believes that enough of the rookies, which he is bringing up from the minor leagues, will make good in the big show to put the Yanks back on top of the heap.

"The youngsters we are bringing up next season," Barrow stated flatly, "are the best in the minors. With them filling in some of the worn parts and giving the team the spirit it lacked most of last season, I can't see how we are going to miss winning the flag again."

BORDAGARAY CONSIDERED

"Our biggest problem," he continued, "is landing a hard-hitting right-handed outfielder. Those players are as scarce as hens' teeth. In the event we can't get an established star in a trade with another club, we are going to bring up Frenchy Bordagaray from Kansas City."

Frenchy, who played with the St. Louis Cardinals in the days of the old "gas house gang," and later with Brooklyn and Cincinnati, had a good year with Kansas City last season.

Barrow said he expected the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians to give the Yanks the most trouble in '41.

"The Tigers have power at the plate," the shaggy-browed president pointed out. "Any club that can hit like the Tigers is bound to cause serious trouble.

FELLER SUPREME

"The Indians, of course, have Bob Feller and a good infield. A little help in the outfield and the Tribe will be more than troublesome."

Barrow also expects the Boston Red Sox to finish among the first four teams, but that "their pitching will have to improve."

He also indicated Tommy Padden, an energetic backstopper who has seen service with Pittsburgh and the New York Giants, would be brought up from the Newark Bears to replace Arndt Jorgens, who retired from baseball recently.

Football Players Star On Braintree Quintet

At this time next week the South Shore basketball situation will be well underway, Coach Bill Erwin of Braintree is grooming his charges for a busy season.

The Braintree High school football team is very well represented on Erwin's squad. Tom Huleatt, halfback, and Paul Cheverie, Boston American All South Shore end are serving as co-captains. Gerard Clougherty another Boston American All South Shore player, is another pigskin juggler carrying the torch for the Braintree High cantaloupe tossers.

Head basketbal mentor, Jack Gannon of Weymouth High isn't looking forward to any too rosy a season. Gannon's Weymouthites dropped a close one to Brockton last week 28 to 26. Weymouth will play their second game of the campaign with Lynn Classical on the latter's home grounds.

There is not one member of the undefeated Weymouth powerhouse on the basketball roster. Speaking of football, 27 members of the victorious squad are on a tour of Washington, D. C., New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Weymouth fans are proud of Keith Clark, 123 pound forward, Keith is the second talented 123 pounder Weymouth has come up with this year. The first was John Delorey, lightning halfback on Harry Arlanson's football squad.

Abington High under Coach Dick Morey is looking forward to a fairly successful basketball season. The Abington hoopsters will open the season with Coyle High School.

At Rockland Coach Arigo LaTanzi's squad plays its initial game of the season on New Years Day at the Rockland High School gym.

Rudolph Plays Joe Procita

Erwin Rudolph, seven-time champion of the world at pocket billiards, resumes play against Boston's Joe Procita today in two games at Shanley's Recreation on Washington st., at 3:15 and 8:15 p. m.

While "Rudie" is fifth in the standing against Procita's third place, he is slowly settling into that good stroke that has brought him the championship so often.

The complete standing of the players:

	Won	Lost
Willie Mosconi	33	9
Andrew Ponzi	27	17
Joe Procita	23	19
James Caras	23	21
Erwin Rudolph	20	22
Onofrio Lauri	18	24
Johnny Irish	15	25
George Kelly	11	33

Willie Mosconi of New York has so far proven himself the outstanding player, with his remarkable record of 33 wins against nine losses and his three runs of 125 and "out," constituting as it does a new world's record.

RANGERS, LEAFS WEEK-END FOES; BRUINS TIE, 3-3

By the Associated Press

New York Rangers, 1940 Stanley Cup hockey champions, meet Toronto Maple Leafs, the team they beat in the finals, in a two-game series this week-end.

The Rangers' objective now, instead of shooting for the world championship, is trying to shake off the New York Americans and protect their hold on fifth place in the league standings.

Toronto, far in front in the race, is out to break a streak of four games without a victory. They've split the decisions in their two encounters so far.

BRUINS TO REST

The Americans, tired of being booted around by the Boston Bruins, played real hockey in last night's only game to gain a 3-3 draw with the team which had beaten them 10-3, 6-3 and 8-1 in three previous meetings.

The result moved them up from a sixth-place tie with Les Canadiens to even terms with the Rangers. They'll try for a higher position tonight when they meet Canadiens in Montreal.

Boston, which recently took over third place from Chicago and threatened Detroit's hold on second place, wound up a point behind the Red Wings as a result of last night's draw.

The Bruins are idle over the week-end, while Chicago's Blackhawks face the Red Wings at Detroit tomorrow.

If they win, the Hawks again can tie for third. There's some question about Chicago's winning, however. The Hawks, who couldn't lose to Detroit all last season, have taken two beatings from the Wings this season.

The American-Bruin game, in contrast to their previous affairs, was a nip and tuck contest all the way.

Two goals were disputed as the opening tally by Fred Hunt, Americans' rookie, bounced back after striking the goal post or just inside it, and later Woody Dumart scored on a penalty shot while Earl Robertson, the Americans' goalie, was still boiling over the referee's ruling that Charlie Conacher had held the puck in the crease.

HOOLEY DOES IT

The Amerks took a 2-0 first period lead on Hunt's goal and one by Murray Armstrong.

Dumart's penalty counter tied the score after Dit Clapper had smacked home a second-period goal and a couple of minutes later Bobby Bauer shot Boston into a 3-2 lead.

Hooley Smith, playing his 17th National Hockey League season, knotted the count again in the third period with his first goal of the season.

The Amerks can look for another tough scrap tonight. They have broken even with the Canadiens in two games this season and the youthful Montrealers are showing signs of improvement.

They won their last two games from Boston and Chicago and have an outside chance of climbing into fifth place with a victory.

SKATES ON HIS HANDS? Look closely at this photo, and it will seem as though Dezzy Smith of Bruins has an extra pair of skates strapped to his hands. But tain't so. Those extra skates belong to a daring young New York American who attempted to get by Smith in scoring try. He neither got by, nor scored. As Smith squashes him to ice, Goaler Brimsek looks behind net for the puck, and other Bruins start out in pursuit of elusive disc. Game ended in 3-3-overtime draw.

Hershey Bears Out to Overhaul Top-Place Six

By the Associated Press

Hershey Bears, now in second place in the American Hockey League's western division, appear to have a 50-50 chance to overhaul the pace-setting Cleveland Barons over the week-end and set the stage to take over first place New Year's Day.

Bears and Barons clash tonight for the fourth time, at Hershey, with the home-towners trailing in the standings by four points.

It doesn't take much figuring to see that Hershey must win twice and Cleveland lose twice to bring about a tie. That looks like a big order for the Bears.

But the home edge has played a large part in the series between the two clubs so far, Cleveland winning both games played at home and losing at Hershey. So this should be the Bears' night.

Tomorrow night, the Bears take on the last-place Buffalo Bisons, whom they have beaten twice by large margins, while the Barons tangle with the much more formidable Indianapolis Capitals.

In the eastern division, the New Haven Eagles and the Springfield Indians will resume their battle tomorrow night for first place.

Shute Helps Doc

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 28 (AP)—Dr. H. M. Cornell, 70-year-old retired physician, went to see Denny Shute, the Florida golf pro, in an exhibition Thursday.

Yesterday, he said, he followed Shute's "follow-through on the right side . . ." and recorded his first hole-in-one, a 100-yard shot. That put him even with his brother, Fred Cornell, who scored an ace a few days ago at 72.

Yauckoes Has Tooth Out

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Dec. 28 (AP)—Another brisk scrimmage was on the program this afternoon for the Boston College Eagles, training here for their Sugar Bowl meeting with Tennessee.

The second and third string players were given an extra session this morning to school them in the Tennessee system, which they employ against the regulars.

John Yauckoes, giant tackle, went to the dentist to have an abscessed tooth extracted. He has been out of uniform since Christmas, with a slight fever, but is expected to see service on New Year's Day.

OLYMPICS SEEK SEVENTH IN ROW

By SAM BROGNA

With six straight victories under their belts and with the next five contests to be played on home ice, the Boston Olympics return tonight to the Garden for the first of this quintet of meetings and the second game in as many days against the Baltimore Orioles in the second third of the Eastern Amateur League schedule and the race for the Boardwalk Cup honors.

Following tonight's clash with the Birds, the Pics return to the ole depot tomorrow afternoon to meet the River Vale Skeeters.

JUNIORS MEET BROKERS

Prior to the Olympic-Skeeter game on the Sabbath, the Junior Olympics will take on the Exchange Brokers of the New York Met League in an inter-city contest for the Lester Patrick Trophy.

Coach Hago Harrington and his victorious Pics will return late this afternoon from an all day ride from Atlantic City, where they added the Sea Gulls of that city to their string of victims last night, coming from behind twice to win over the Gulls by a 3 to 2 score.

This victory came the hard way since the first line of Spain, Guibord and Sullivan was missing, as well as Cliff Thompson and Harry Martin, two defensemen. All Boston goals were accounted for in the third period, two by Mid Reiland the new center ice man, and the other by Art Jeremiah. These two teamed with Jerry Desrosiers for the starting line.

FORCED TO DOUBLE UP

For tonight, Coach Hago Harrington again will be forced to double up, not so much on the three lines but on defense. It is expected that Harry Martin, the spare defenseman who is at the bedside of his ailing father in Minnesota will not return and Junnie Stubbs will again be at points.

Dan Sullivan is held up in Philadelphia on business and again will not be on hand. His place will be taken over by Dave "Harpo" Walsh, another former Dartmouth star who made his first showing of the year last night in Atlantic City.

crowd of older and more mature gridsters.

In all probability Manzo was able to reach the heights in football that he has because he wasn't burnt out when he took the game up seriously at Boston College. After playing a couple of seasons at Medford high Joe didn't see much action at St. John's prep. But by the time he entered B. C. he was developed and began to realize his possibilities on the gridiron.

About a month ago, Manzo was drafted by the Detroit Lions. He will take a short fling at pro football. He's a six footer, weighing 223, and isn't showy or flashy but packs plenty of drive and power and there is not a tackle in college ranks capable of going laterally as effectively as he can and does.

Manzo was a co-captain in the center game, the opening contest of the most successful season in the annals of football at Boston College. On New Year's Day, he'll be a co-captain in the final game of his college career and in the most important test any Eagle outfit has been called upon to meet.

The Eagles will huddle tomorrow and vote for the other co-captain.

WINTER SPORTS FORECAST

The Boston weather bureau issued the following forecast of winter sports weather:

Wherever there is snow-covered ground over northern New England there will be a gradual decrease in the snow cover during tonight and Sunday, with temperatures above freezing and with the precipitation expected to be in the form of rain over the week-end. No increase in the snow cover is possible.

Hudson High Team to Beat For Ice Flag

With the third weekly session of the Eastern Mass. Interscholastic Hockey League now history, powerful Hudson and clever Lexington remain locked in a top place tie in the circuit's standing. Neither team has been defeated or tied in three starts thus far this season.

Hudson's latest conquest as registered with Malden a 4-2 victim. On the same program Charlie Bridey's Lexington Minutemen came through with a neat 2-1 decision over non-winning Natick; Somerville smashed its way into third place via a conquest of Brookline, 4-2, and Dedham assumed fourth place in the standing when it tied Brockton, 2-2.

HUDSON TEAM TO BEAT

After three weeks of interesting hockey, during which the attendance has steadily increased, Hudson appears to be the team to beat if any of the other schools hope to annex the 1940-41 circuit gonfalon.

The speedy Scarlets have poured 14 goals into opposing nets while their own strings have been dented but four times in three games. That indicates power.

Lexington, also undefeated, and Somerville, winner of its last two starts after a disastrous opener, have to be considered. Though the Lexingtons have scored but eight goals they have permitted only three goals to be registered against them, and in each of their games have played clever, alert and aggressive hockey.

SOMERVILLE MAY SURPRISE

Capt. Dick Archibald, the league's leading scorer, is Lexington's firecracker. "Archie" scored the only goals (2) tallied in the Lexington-Natick clash.

Somerville, with a well-balanced squad and a capable goaler in blond Mert Crowley, may be the surprise package of the circuit before the curtain comes down on Feb. 14. Defeated by Lexington in its opener, Somerville has shown some real class while defeating Brockton and Brookline in its most recent efforts.

Dedham, tied by Brockton, in its most recent clash; inexperienced Brookline and lethargic Malden, all of which have single wins to their credit, aren't entirely out of the fight—not with the league still weeks from the finish line.

However, the Dedhams, the Brooklines and the Maldens will have to start producing immediately if they intend to be in the running at the finish.

Brockton and Natick, neither of which has hit the winner's circle yet, quite likely won't win any pennant this season but they'll be lots of competition for the others. Natick has been scored on only six times in three games.

MADE MORE MONEY BOXING AS 'PURE' THAN PRO--SOOSE

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (INS)—Billy Soose — the middleweight who looks like a chorus boy and fights like a longshoreman—is wondering today if he wouldn't have done better financially by remaining in the amateur ranks.

Billy has had 32 professional fights in three years, and his best purse was only $2600. He hopes to do a little better than that when he tangles with Tami Mauriello, a very rough party from the Bronx, in Madison Square Garden Jan. 3.

$200 AS AMATEUR

You might suppose Billy was a novice with such a short ring record until you recall that he had exactly 193 battles as an "amateur." And he was paid more for some of his "amateur" bouts than he was for many of his pro fights.

Billy used to draw $200 for an amateur bout. He was so good that Paul Moss, his present manager, and an old Penn State grad, picked him up and sent him to his alma mater.

Billy remained there two years during which he took a pre-medical course and on the side found time to win the intercollegiate boxing title which is a very amteurish title indeed.

He might still be at Penn State if someone hadn't exposed his amateur ring career.

So Billy bade good-b yto the cloistered walls of Penn State and headed for Hollywood and Paul Moss, who was then doing some press work for Dick Powell.

Moss knew little about managing a fighter, but he took Billy under his wing and got him a few fights on the Coast. Every fight is an ordeal for Moss, who probably feels every punch more than Soose does.

BEAT TWO CHAMPS

A year ago Soose fought and defeated Paul Pirrone in Cleveland. Early in the fight Pirrone floored Soose for a count of three.

As he got up off the floor, Billy glanced over to his corner where he saw one of the seconds holding the smelling salts under Moss' nose. Moss had fainted when he saw Billy knocked down.

Within the last six months Billy has licked both Ken Overlin, the world's middleweight champion, and Tony Zale, the N. B. A. champion.

If he beats Mauriello, he will get anothe rshot at Overlin with the title riding on the result.

But one shudders to think what may happen to Mr. Moss if Mr. Mauriello should plant a haymaker on Mr. Soose's jaw.

Pitcher Rigney, Club Treasurer Engaged to Wed

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (AP)—The engagement of Dorothy Comiskey, treasurer of the Chicago White Sox baseball club, to John Rigney of the White Sox pitching staff, was announced today by Mrs. Grace Comiskey, mother of the bride-to-be.

Miss Comiskey, 23, daughter of the late J. Louis Comiskey and granddaughter of Charles A. Comiskey, founder of the American League club, said the marriage would take place next fall.

Rigney, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Rigney of River Forest, Ill., led White Sox hurlers in 1940, winning 15 games against 18 defeats.

Wide Open Race For Conn's Title

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (INS)—So far as the National Boxing Ass'n is concerned, the race is wide open today for Billy Conn's light heavyweight crown.

Joe Triner, president of the N. B. A., in telegrams to six leading light heavies, said that because of Conn's evident intention to give up his title to fight Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship, he was inviting them to take part in a tournament to decide the new king.

Cox Meets Ex-Shadow New Year's

Big Joe Cox of Kansas, who has defeated Yvon Robert and drawn with Steve Casey in successive weeks, has won top billing by these performances, for Paul Bowser has signed him to wrestle Marvin Westenberg (formerly the Shadow) at the Arena next Wednesday night.

Like Robert and Casey, Westenberg is a former world champion, and Cox figures a victory over the former masked terror will earn him a shot at the current title holder, The Angel.

Westenberg's pet hold is the headlock, made famous by Ed Strangler Lewis, while Cox patterns himself after "Gentleman Jack" Washburn, first of the "bad men."

CORNELL, 1 TO 0

SCORE: 284-283

TROPICAL PARK, Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 28—Walter L. Taylor, 19-year-old jockey from Houston, Tex., jumped into the lead for top riding honors in the country here this afternoon when he piloted Isolde to an easy victory in the Miami Shores Handicap, third race on the program.

Taylor's victory posted his score at 284 triumphs against Earl Dew's 283.

This was Taylor's third attempt of the afternoon to break the deadlock with his rival, Dew, who left Florida Thursday night by plane to go to the coast to ride at Agua Caliente.

In the first and second races, Taylor finished among the also rans.

Taylor was to ride mounts in the remaining five races on the card, in an effort to increase his lead.

DEW HAS ADVANTAGE

Dew will have a tremendous advantage in mounts as he will wear silks at Agua Caliente tomorrow on at least nine mounts. Dew will start booting 'em at Santa Anita on Tuesday.

Taylor is king of the roost here and if he continues on his victorious march will be hard to offstand. His handlers have been exceedingly smart in obtaining good mounts for Walter and it is a certainty that they will keep up their good work.

Taylor had contracted to ride in all of the seven races yesterday but the rain came along and caused the withdrawal of four possibilities. This left him three mounts and on two of them he was successful. Arabesque and Paul Lee.

FANS INTERESTED

When he sloughed home with Paul Lee in the seventh race and it was announced that he had tied Dew, the crowd went wild and the noise sounded like a tremendous thunderclap.

The interest in the riding duel here is simply amazing and thousands have come to the track just to see the little titans engage in their battle for jockey supremacy.

With Dew far away, the rooting will be unanimous for Taylor as he will be considered the "home town boy" and receive all the wishes for a brilliant success.

Lillian Lopaus Sets Down 'Lonnie' Myers

Scoring the biggest upset of the tournament, Lillian Lopaus, City Island, N. Y., today toppled top-seeded Carolyn "Lonnie" Myers of Hartford, Ct., in a semi-final match of the junior girls' national indoor tennis single championships at Longwood's covered courts.

Repeating a performance of yesterday, when she upset fourth-seeded Judy Atterbury, Great Neck, L. I., Miss Lopaus scored a straight-set triumph over Miss Myers, 6—4, 6—4.

Tomorrow she enters the finals with Dorothy Wightman, who defeated Betty Rosenquest, South Orange, N. J., 6—4, 6—1, in the other semi-final match.

In the doubles, Miss Wightman and Miss Myers paired to enter the finals by defeating Miss Atterbury and Miss Gloria Rustum, 6—2, 6—4.

Their finalist opponents tomorrow will be Miss Rosenquest and Miss Lopaus, who defeated Peggy and Betty Howe, 6—4, 6—2.

Cambridge Latin and Arlington, Rindge Tech and Medford were paired in the second half of the program.
